FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL INTELLIGENCE.

The steamship Allemannia, from Southampton on Sept. 20, arrived here last evening.

The City of Limerick arrived at Queenstown on Sept. 18.

The steamship City of Washington, from New-York, arrived out on the 19th.

The following gold ships from Australia are announced to be on their way to England:

Essex, which sailed July 1, with 120,788 ounces; William Duthie, on July 20, with 32,625 ounces; and the Lincolnshire, on July 22, with 70,552 ounces, the whole being valued at about £900,000. The largeness of these consignments is consequent upon their being no longer diverted to India.

GREAT BRITAIN.

THE FENIANS.

THE ARRESTS IN DUBLIN.

From the London Times, Sept. 18.

The Irish Government has at last recognized the existence of the Fenians by an act of politic vigor. At 9 o'clock on Friday night a large force of police was dispatched from Dublin Castle to Parliament-street, where they divided into two bodies and blockaded both ends of the street. Admission was then demanded at the office of the Irish People, the organ of the Fenian Brotherhood, but no response was given, upon which a detachment of constables was sent to guard the back entrance of the house, and the door was broken in. Ten persons, including the proprietor, were made prisoners and carried, under a strong escort, to the College-street police station, the police remaining in possession of the premises. Two men were suddenly arrested as they were following behind in the crowd, and others were taken into custody during the night or in the course of Saturday. The coup was entirely unexpected, and the resolution upon which the warrant was issued had been taken by the Privy Council, after anxious deliberation, but an hour or two before. To this promptitude its complete success was, no doubt, mainly due. No resistance was offered, and the only one who protested was a man named MURPHY, who described himself as an American citizen, and stated that he should invoke the protection of Mr. SEWARD. So quietly and efficiently was the whole affair managed that little excitement was produced at the time, and before a mob could assemble all the types, files and manuscripts, including the list of subscribers, had been safely lodged in the Castle yard. It appears that Saturday is the day on which the Irish People is published; but it is supposed that the country edition had already been posted before the arrival of the police. In the meantime an officer had been sent to the telegraph office to prevent news of the arrest being forwarded to other parts of the country. Owing to this timely precaution the Cork police were enabled to capture a large number of suspected persons about 3 or 4 o'clock on Saturday morning, and it is probable that similar intelligence may reach us from other centres of Fenianism. On Saturday afternoon the Dublin prisoners—twenty-one in all—were brought before the sitting magistrates at the Central Police-office, and charged, in effect, with conspiracy and treasonable practices, with the view of levying war upon the Queen in Ireland, and severing that country from the United Kingdom. A remand was thereupon granted until next Saturday, and bail was refused. The prisoners were greeted with vociferous cheering as they were removed to the van, and sympathy was abundantly manifested by the mob, but no disturbance took place.

ORIGIN OF THE MOVEMENT IN AMERICA.

From the London Times, Sept. 19.

The surprise of the Dublin Fenians on Friday night has been followed up by more arrests in the capital and elsewhere, and we shall soon obtain accurate information as to the strength and constitution of this mysterious society. Such facts as are already known encourage us to believe that it will be found much less formidable than it has been represented. Two military uniforms have been found, and most of the drill instructors are said to be Irish militiamen or disbanded soldiers of the United States army. The rank and file appear to consist of clerks and workmen in various mechanical employments. We do not hear that any one of influence or position in society is supposed to be implicated, and among the Dublin prisoners the two most respectable, besides those connected with the Irish People, seem to be a tailor and an inspector of fire escapes. The persons arrested in Cork include an engineer, several shopmen, an attorney's clerk, and a publican. Those brought up last week before the magistrates at Wexford are described as "fine, able young men, and engaged about the cots on the river." It is no doubt possible for a very dangerous conspiracy to be formed out of such materials as these without active support from the educated classes or those who have anything to lose by rebellion. But then it must originate in a deep sense of injury. It must be directed, like the movement of 1848, by leaders of some ability, and it must, above all, be matured in profound secrecy. All the conditions are here conspicuously wanting. The Fenians have not even a pretended grievance wherewith to work upon the feelings of the peasantry; they seem to be without generalship or effective organization, and they have advertised their treasonable designs beforehand with a puerile incapacity of reticence. The programme of the American Fenians was made public some two years ago, and we have ever since been under express notice of invasion. The "threatening demeanor of farm laborers and shop assistants" in the County of Cork was one of the first things that excited the fears of the loyal inhabitants and led them to petition for an increased force of military and police. At Waterford, the friends of a Fenian ballad-singer who was convicted and sent to prison "left the court in compact military order; and one of them loudly declared that the magistrates, instead of the prisoner, would be in jail before the end of the six months." We hear, too, of the Fenians discussing their plans in public-houses "with as much freedom as if they were seated at the other side of the Atlantic;" and of "well-dressed Yankees" frequenting Irish hotels, "who appear to have unlimited means, and who speak of the invasion of Ireland by a Fenian fleet as a certainty within the next five months." This may be candor, but it certainly is not policy. It was not thus that the unknown authors of the Indian mutiny plotted the ruin of our empire, and it could hardly be expected that the power which crushed that tremendous insurrection at a distance of many thousand miles would tamely submit to be evicted from Irish soil by the Fenians after receiving fair warning.

* * * * * *

While it is beyond question that America has been the cradle of this foolish association, and is still the basis of its operations, we must do full justice to the United States' Government. So far from conniving at these fillibustering designs, or at the exportation of firearms to Ireland, there is reason to believe that it has earnestly discouraged them. It is stated that the information upon which the seizure was made at the Irish People office was derived from Washington, and may probably have been communicated to our Minister by the United States' authorities. We sincerely trust that such may prove to be the case, and none would have more reason to thank Mr. SEWARD for his intervention than the deluded youths who may thus have been saved from plunging further into crime. There is true mercy in putting down sedition at an early stage. The ringleaders are always few in number, and their prompt apprehension enables the government to deal gently with their less guilty followers. Its complete success, in this instance, is its best justification, and this single blow may perhaps be the means of paralyzing Fenianism once for all. If fresh recruits and stores of arms be really on their way from America, it is to be hoped that the police, with the papers already in their hands, will know how to take good care of them. The presence of our fleet on the west coast of Ireland, though doubtless accidental, has greatly tended to quiet the panic among the peaceable inhabitants, and will serve as a timely warning to the Fenians on both sides of the Atlantic. "The Irish," says the same writer, in the Presse, "are still great children, loving noise, agitation, whisky, nocturnal vagabondism." We entirely agree with this estimate of the Fenians, and heartily share the hope that, after this lesson, their patriotism may "evaporate without effusion of blood," or even a bloodless skirmish in a cabbage garden.

NO ASSISTANCE FROM AMERICA.

From the London Morning Post, Sept. 20.

Strange to say, though Fenianism is almost dead in America, it survives in Ireland; and, though by no means politically formidable, it may work some evil in Ireland by temporarily arresting her progress. Now, Fenianism in Ireland lives upon the assurance that America is coming to the rescue; and we venture to assert that not only is this assurance false, but it is the very reverse of the truth. America will not attempt to turn Ireland into a republic, and, moreover, neither the government nor the people of America wish for the success of Fenianism. The American Government, which is certainly a representative government, has all along evinced hostility to the loafers' Fenian fiasco. The American government was loyal to England under the provocations engendered by the war, and now, when the relations between the two countries are of the most cordial character, and when not a single cause of irritation remains, we may be sure that, rather than aid Fenianism, the American Government will incline to do what it can to stop a movement which, in a political point of view, is ridiculous, but which, if not nipped in the bud, may result in much suffering to the foolish dupes of a set of vagabond political adventurers. The Fenian agents assert that Mr. SEWARD is friendly to the movement, that he has subscribed to the funds, and they even circulate copies of a supposed letter from Mr. SEWARD to the "Grand Circle" of the Fenians. It is marvellous that people should be gulled by such stories. It is marvellous that any one should believe that a statesman of Mr. SEWARD's position and ability could be guilty of the folly of countenancing one of the most absurd plots ever devised. For the benefit of the gulls, we beg to state that Mr. SEWARD has never subscribed a cent to the Fenian fund, and that he has never written a letter of sympathy to the Grand Circle or to any other Fenian. Nor is this all. So far from aiding, Mr. SEWARD has steadily opposed the movement. It is understood that two years ago Mr. SEWARD, in a friendly and informal manner, called the attention of our government to the Fenian movement, giving detailed information as to its organization, numbers and designs. It is also understood that Mr. SEWARD has lately made further communications as to Fenianism to our government. Neither the public of the United Kingdom nor our government will readily forget Mr. SEWARD's honorable and amicable conduct.

The Fenian agents also assert that President JOHNSON is favorable to the scheme; and we doubt not that some persons have credited this preposterous assertion, but it is utterly false. President JOHNSON is the last man in the world to sympathize with causeless treason. No statesman is more bitterly hostile to uncalled-for revolution than he is. Moreover, President JOHNSON is very friendly to this country, and since he has been in office he has spared no pains to promote the most intimate and hearty relations between his government and the British Government.

We tell the dupes of the Fenian agents that they are most grossly deceived. They have been assured of aid from America, and from America they will get no assistance. The moment selected for their abortive attempt at rioting—we will not designate it insurrection—is the moment when the relations between England and America are more frank and friendly than they have been for many years past. Nay, the Fenians must not count even on the neutrality of America. We tell them that the American Government has done and will do all in its power to assist us by information in frustrating the designs, and in bringing to punishment the miscreants who have endeavored, though vainly, to plunge Ireland into riot and disorder.

ALLEGED DISAFFECTION IN THE ARMY.

From the Dublin Freeman's Journal, Sept. 19.

Yesterday passed over without anything of special importance or significance occurring in reference to the Fenian movement. Rumor, however, was not idle. A thousand and one foolish reports obtained easy circulation, but they had only to be repeated to be disbelieved, and everything maintained its accustomed appearance, notwithstanding the inventions of the gossippers and the sensational announcements of the newsboys. The city was entirely free from anything that could be properly described as excitement. We are, however, concerned to learn, from the Cork Reporter, received last night, that "a very large number of the military at present stationed in the Cork barracks are not alone disaffected, but sworn members." This is a very serious statement, and although our contemporary is generally well informed and moderate in its assertions, we are strongly inclined to doubt the accuracy of this assertion, even though the Reporter assures us that "it has been ascertained beyond doubt." In France and other continental States the "fraternization" of the military with insurgents is not without precedent, but in the British army, we believe, such an occurrence is unknown. In connection with this very alarming statement of the southern contemporary we may state that the Second Battalion of the First Royal left the Curragh Camp yesterday morning per special train to join the headquarters of the regiment at Cork. Whether the movement had anything in connection with the alleged "disaffection" of the Cork garrison we, of course, cannot pretend to say; but we are inclined to look on the removal of those men to Cork as a compliance with the memorial of the magistrates, and for the purpose of coöperating if necessary with civil power in carrying out the provisions of the Peace Preservation Act. Mr. STEPHENS, for whom the reward of £200 was offered on Saturday, still continues at large, and we perceive that a reward of a similar sum has been offered for the apprehension of Mr. GEARY, whom the Cork police did not succeed in capturing. The Cork Reporter states that a man named WARNER is the informer in the city. In the course of the day three arrests were made in Dublin, which increases the number of prisoners now in the hands of the police here and in Cork to no less than thirty-eight.

THE "IRISH PEOPLE" SEIZED AT TULLAMORE.

From the Same.

On Saturday morning last Mr. CARR, County Inspector, accompanied by two police sergeants, proceeded to the shop of Mr. WILLIAM LYNAM, of Bridge-street, news-agent, and asked to see a copy of the Irish People. Mr. LYNAM produced one, and was then asked how many copies he had. He answered, "Nine." The inspector then asked for the names of the parties who were in the habit of taking the Irish People. Mr. LYNAM said that the persons who bought them were mere casual customers, and not subscribers. The inspector and the police sergeants then seized the papers and lodged them in the police-office. The affair attracted the attention of the townspeople, but it did not create much sensation, owing to the fact that the seizure of the Irish People, in Dublin, had previously been known here; the act of the public officers in this town was regarded as a consequence of the order for the seizure of the persons connected with the office of the paper in Dublin. We gather from our correspondents that the same precautions was generally adopted throughout the country, and with especial care and attention in Queenstown, Youghal, and other towns in the County Cork.

GREAT EXCITEEENT IN CORK.

The Cork Examiner of the 18th, says: The most intense excitement was caused here on Saturday, by the arrest of a large number of persons charged with belonging to the Fenian Brotherhood. A battery of artillery has arrived from Ballincallig

THE BRITISH FLEET.

A telegram from Skibbereen says: The British fleet arrived off Cape Clear on Friday.

FRENCH COMMENTS ON THE MOVEMENT.

From La Presse, Sept. 18.

At bottom Ireland has no real grievance; she is in the enjoyment of religious, civil, and commercial liberty. Every grade, rank, and dignity, all the rewards of civil, military, or political life are as open to the Irish as to the English. The General most laden with honors during this century, WELLINGTON, was an Irishman. The Irish everywhere occupy foremost positions in the army, at the bar, on the bench; in Parliament the Irish brigade disposes of the majority, and almost lays down the law to the ministry. In times of famine Ireland has ever found in the purse of England the most liberal and generous assistance. We say, therefore, with the utmost confidence, that Ireland has neither a motive for revolting nor the means requisite for doing so.

From the Avenir National, Sept. 18.

The Fenians have been persuaded that they can rely on the early arrival of an American fleet, with 50,000 soldiers and 200,000 muskets! Others believe in the aid of France! With a people so credulous, it is easy to produce a sudden explosion which the great number of those affiliated might render dangerous, but it is impossible to believe that, knowing their illusions, the English Government can possibly entertain any serious apprehensions; but it must have it at heart to prevent the bloodshed which a rash movement might lead to. Moreover, it cannot but derive some comfort from the fact that the Catholic clergy are to a man against Fenianism. Now, no movement has ever taken place in Ireland that the priests did not encourage by their example and altar denunciations. This time it not only abstains from joining, but condemns the insurrectionary movement. The despatch of the English squadron to the coast of Ireland can, therefore, only be considered as a mere demonstration to check any insane attempt. The English Government prefers preventing the evil to having to repress it, and takes up a threatening attitude to spare itself the necessity of rigorous punishment.

From the Constitutionnel, Sept. 17.

After all, what must we think of those Fenians, who, according to the English journals, are at once contemptible and ridiculous, and against whom some of the papers urge that severe measures of repression and precaution should be taken? In the first place, it is indisputable that the Irish emigrants, who are so numerous in America, where their native hatred against England has only become more intense, have there organized a vast association, having the deliverance of Ireland for its object. Whether this project be insensate or rational, whether it have any chance of success or not, are questions we need not discuss. The Fenians existed in the United States before the war, and is even pretended that their first advance of funds consisted of a million subscribed in 1848. The war gave this armed association a new and general impulse. There were Fenians in the armies of the South, fewer, however, than in the armies of the North. Though fighting, perhaps, with ulterior views, in opposite camps, they were all united by the same hatred and the same thirst for vengeance against England. All confidently hoped that an occasion of rupture between Great Britain and the United States would arise, and they were ready to take advantage of it. This occasion did not present itself, owing to the prudence of the British Cabinet, and unless the Washington Cabinet attempts to enforce its demand for the indemnities already claimed as a compensation for the losses which Confederate corsairs of English origin have inflicted on the mercantile navy of the United States, we do not see how it can arise in future.

* * * *

Within the last few weeks, however, the Fenians in Ireland, probably in obedience to instructions sent from America, have been meeting in small bodies during the night to learn military exercises under the direction of old sergeants come from America. These nocturnal meetings seem to have given alarm to the public and to the government, and to have provoked the measures which have just been taken. The English journals, which have taken alarm at the news of an approaching arrival of Fenians from America, do not seem to us sufficiently convinced that England has nothing to fear from the accomplishment of such a prediction. Undoubtedly they have yielded to a first movement having somewhat the character of a panic; it is none the less true that this incident will once more give prominence to the Irish question, which is and long will be one of England's greatest difficulties.

MISCELLANEOUS.

TORPEDOES IN BRITISH HARBORS.

From the London Army and Navy Gazette.

Mr. DONALD M'KAY, the well-known American shipbuilder, is at present in this country, and is in close communication with the Admiralty on the subject of torpedoes. It is the intention, we understand, of the authorities to entertain seriously the question of having on hand a stock of these destructive missiles, with a view of laying them down, in the event of a war, in the different channels leading into our harbors, thus leaving our fleet to a great extent free to proceed to sea.

COMPLIMENT TO CAPT. COLES.

The Times says: "Capt. COLES has been presented by the Grand Duke CONSTANTINE, of Russia, with a massive gold snuff-box, set with diamonds. Such an acknowledgment of the worth of the turret principle, which has been so long and persistently advocated by Capt. COLES, must be highly gratifying to him, now that the turret is already fitted to about a dozen vessels of the Imperial Russian Navy in the Baltic, and has been tested under all possible conditions of wind and weather."

BENJAMIN TO REMAIN IN ENGLAND.

The Liverpool Albion says that Mr. BENJAMIN, ex-Confederate Secretary of State, intends to join the English Bar. He is an eminent and eloquent lawyer.

THD CATTLE PLAGUE.

The cattle plague continues to increase; the London cow-houses are deserted.

GENERAL NEWS.

FRANCE.

Accounts from the manufacturing districts continue to be favorable.

The vintage has commenced throughout France, and it is now certain that there will be an abundant crop of wine.

The Moniteur de l'Algerie states that the accounts received of the crops are, in general, satisfactory. The cotton crop argues well. The entire districts of Bon Roumi and El Afroun are covered with cotton plantations and an abundant crop is expected.

Flour declined 50 cents the sack in the Paris market.

Bourse firm. Rentes, 68f. 80c.

AUSTRIA.

The official Gazette of Vienna contradicts the rumor that the government intends to establish in the German provinces of Austria a system of provincial self-government similar to that of the Hungarian Comitats. The official journal at the same time, however, wishes it to be understood that the government is, nevertheless, favorable to provincial self-government, although not in the form represented by the Hungarian Obersehans.

THE GASTEIN CONVENTION.

EARL RUSSELL'S DISPATCH TO ENGLISH REPRESENTATIVES.

The following is the full text of Earl RUSSELL's dispatch as published in the Independence Belge:

SIR—The Prussian Chargé d'Affaires has communicated to me the substance of a dispatch relative to the Gastein Convention, and since then the text of that dispatch has been published by the Berlin papers.

On the first communication to Her Majesty's Government of the preliminaries of peace signed at Vienna, I caused the views of the government upon these preliminaries to be expressed in that city and at Berlin.

The present convention only serves to augment the regret expressed by Her Majesty's Government at that period.

The treaties of 1815 gave the King of Denmark a seat in the Germanic Diet as Duke of HOLSTEIN.

The treaty of 1852 recognized the right of succession to the whole of the Danish Monarchy, which the late King had constituted in the person of the present Sovereign.

This treaty, notwithstanding the assurances given in the dispatches of the 31st of January, 1864, has been completely set aside by Austria and Prussia, two of the Powers who signed it.

It might justly have been expected that when treaties are thus annulled the popular feeling in Germany, the wishes of the inhabitants of the Duchies, and the opinion of the majority of the Diet, so expressly stated by Austria and Prussia at the London Conference, would at least have been consulted in their place. In this manner, if one class of rights were passed over, others arising from the assent of the populations might have been substituted for them, and these rights, received with respect, might have had some chance of duration.

But all rights, old or new, whether based upon a solemn agreement between sovereigns or on the clear and precise expression of the popular will, have been trodden under foot by the Gastein Convention, and the authority of force is the sole power which has been consulted and recognized.

Violence and conquest, such are the only bases upon which the dividing powers have established their convention.

Her Majesty's Government greatly deplores the disregard thus manifested for the principles of public law and the legitimate claim that a people may raise to be heard when their destiny is called into question. The present dispatch does not authorize you to address observations upon this subject to the court to which you are accredited, and is solely intended to acquaint you in what sense you will speak of it when the occasion arrives.

I am, &c., RUSSELL.

FOREIGN OFFICE, Sept. 14."

RUSSIA AND THE GASTEIN CONVENTION.

A telegram from Vienna of Sept. 18, says: "The Neue Fremdenblatt declares the rumor of a Russian circular note concurring in the views of the Western Powers in reference to the Gastein Convention to be in contradiction to the declarations of Count STACKELBERG, the Russian Ambassador at this court."

The Neue Fremdenblatt says that Count STACKELBERG lately declared officially that Russia would maintain a non-intervention policy in the Schleswig-Holstein question.

THE DUTCH LEGISLATURE.

A telegram from the Hague of Sept. 18, says: "The Dutch Chambers were opened to-day. The following are the most important points mentioned in the speech from the throne: The relations with foreign Powers are stated to be friendly, and the conditions of the colonial possessions favorable. The finances are prosperous, and the redemption of the public debt will be continued. The harvest is better than was expected. Measures have been taken to arrest the progress of the dangerous epidemic prevailing among cattle, and if necessary the attention of the Chambers will be again directed to the subject."

SPAIN.

A dispatch from Madrid says:

"The mysterious telegraphic dispatch sent to San Sebastian, some assert from Paris, others from Madrid, announcing the existence of a plot to assassinate the Emperor NAPOLEON while in Spain, caused the most rigorous precautions to be taken along the whole route of the Imperial party from Paris to San Sebastian. The scene of the projected attempt was stated to be Hendaya, and the intended assassin a Spaniard. Travelers arrived here by the Northern Railway from France speak of having been detained whole hours in the waiting-rooms at the stations, in order that they should not even see the Imperial train pass through."

PRUSSIA.

A telegram from Berlin, of Sept. 17, says: "Herr VON BISMARK was yesterday elevated to the rank of Count, and received a long visit of congratulation from the King. The King, accompanied by the Crown Prince, left to-day for Merseburg."

A dispatch from Ratzburg, of Sept. 15, says: "A royal proclamation issued here to-day, and countersigned by Herr VON BISMARK, declares that Prussia takes possession of Lauenburg, in compliance with the wishes expressed by the Representative Assembly of that Duchy. The King of Prussia assumes the title of Duke of LAUENBURG.

The proclamation promises to protect the well-established rights of the duchy, and appoints the Prussian Minister for Foreign Affairs to be Minister for Lauenburg. The latter will carry on the government in accordance with the existing laws of the duchy. The proclamation further confirms in their present offices all Lauenburg officials subscribing to the oath of allegiance to the King of Prussia.

Count Arnim is appointed commissioner to take possession of the duchy in the name of the King of Prussia, the ceremony of doing homage to the King being adjourned until such time as the King can receive it in person."

SPAIN AND ITALY.

A dispatch from France of Sept. 28 says:

"This morning Señor ULLOA was received in solemn audience by the King, in order to present his credentials as Spanish Minister to the Italian Court.

Señor ULLOA said: The ancient alliances which have existed at different periods between the royal families of Spain and Savoy, and the common interests of the two nations, who have the same origin and the same political institutions, are a sure guarantee that the good understanding now happily reëstablished, will every day become more firmly consolidated.

The King replied as follows:

The ancient alliances between my family and the royal family of Spain are an agreeable historical reminiscence for us, and a pledge of durable affection between the sister countries, who have the same institutions, the same ancient traditions of friendship and the same glorious recollections.

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL.

The Times city article says: Business remains stagnant. The new Brazilian Loan has advanced 12½ premium on account of the large number of applications understood to have been received by Messrs. ROTHSCHILD, not only in this country but from the Continent.

The news of the Fenian arrests in Ireland caused no feeling, except one of satisfaction, at the prospect that they may save from further mischief a number of crazy dupes, and check the attempts of the worst class of Irish in America to drag the Washington Government into embarrassments.

Consols closed at 89⅝@¾. There was a full discount demand at the bank, but in the Stock Exchange advances continue to be offered at 3 ℔ cent. Illinois Central Shares advanced ⅛. Erie paid up shares a further ¼.

The Times city article of Wednesday, Sept. 20, says: The English funds remain steady. Consols closing at 89⅝@¾. The discount demand is moderate. French Rentes 68f. 67 centimes. Erie shares paid up relapsed ¼.

LIVERPOOL COTTON MARKET—SEPT. 18 AND 19.

The demand continues extensive and sales for the two days amount to 45,000 bales, 20,000 on speculation and for export. Prices ¼d. ℔ lb. dearer.

CONNECTICUT.

Yale versus Wesleyan—Base Ball Match between the Two Colleges—Fine Game—Success of Yale—Remarks and Observations.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

NEW-HAVEN, Saturday, Sept. 30, 1865.

It seems to be very generally taken for granted that if old Yale wishes to do anything, she is perfectly able to do it. She has wished to be at the head of the boating community, and she makes time which challenges the world. She wishes a new building, and twice the amount required swells her coffers. A professorship is to be endowed, and lo, professor and endowment step forth at the same time. In base ball, however, Yale has, up to the present time, been rather behindhand. There has not been sufficient interest in the game to render its patrons able to cope successfully with other clubs, and we record with pleasure a triumph for her in that direction. The Agallian Club of the Wesleyan University, of Middletown, challenged the Yale Club to a match game last Saturday; but owing to the illness of one of the members of the Yale nine, the game was postponed until to-day. Game was called at 2:15 with the Agallians at the bat, and continued through eight innings, until 5:20, when the Middletown boys, finding the score too heavy against them and wishing to leave for home by the evening train, put a stop to the game. The following is the score:

Home Runs—Jewell, 1; Reeve, 1; J. Coffin, 1.

The home runs were all made in the eighth inning and elicited considerable applause from those outside. The fly-catch of S. H. OLIN, of the Agallian, in the third inning, was the best one made in the game though others were made by TERRY, REEVE, CONDIT and EDWARDS, on the Yale side, and by CHASE and CROFT on the Agallian. The day was fine and some of the playing was exceedingly fine, and was witnessed by quite a large number of spectators.

Reference to the score will show the runs of each and a judgment of the playing of each club may be very nearly arrived at, from it. The grounds were tolerably good and the day fair, and everything passed off pleasantly. The situation for the catcher was miserable, and as the Agallians consider their catcher as their best player, considerable allowance must be made for that fact. It is hoped that the Yale boys will give the Agallians another chance to test their strength before the season closes. H. W. R.

Base Ball.

PHILADELPHIA, Sunday, Oct. 1.

In the match game between the Athletics and the Nationals, of Jersey City, yesterday, the former beat the latter by a score of 114 to 2, in a full game of 9 innings. The contest was witnessed by more than 5,000 spectators, over 500 of whom were ladies. This is the greatest game ever played.

On Monday, the Pastimes, of Baltimore, a superior organization, will play with the Athletics in Philadelphia. A grand banquet will be given to the Pastimes at the St. James Hotel after the game.

The long pending contest between the Atlantics and the Athletics is a common topic hereabouts. This game will be witnessed by 50,000 spectators.

From Tennessee.

NASHVILLE, Sunday, Oct. 1.

W. J. ANDREWS, Mayor of Columbia, who was suspended, some months ago, by order of the military commander, Gen. JOHNSON, resigned his civil functions on Monday last, thus affording the Municipal Board opportunity to reorganize, by the reëlection of of Mr. W. J. WALKER as Mayor. The board then elected W. J. ANDREWS to fill the vacancy in the board caused by the election of Mr. WALKER.

The General Assembly of Tennessee convenes on Monday, Oct. 2. Many members are already in the city.

The Baltimore and Liverpool Steamship Line.

BALTIMORE, Sunday, Oct. 1.

The steamship Somerset, the first of the new line between this city and Liverpool, sailed hence on Saturday, with a large freight and a number of passengers. The vessels in the harbor were all gaily decorated with flags in honor of the event, and the wharves were crowded with people, who cheered the Somerset as she passed. Salutes were also fired from the forts.

THE RESTORATION PROBLEM.

The South Carolina State Convention.

Proceedings of the Seventh, Eighth, Ninth and Tenth Days.

Highly Important Debate on the Relations of the Freedmen to the Body Politic.

Election of Governor, Lieut.-Governor and Presidential Electors Given to the People.

From Our Own Correspondent.

Seventh Day.

COLUMBIA, Wednesday, Sept. 20.

The Committee on General Amendments to the constitution, reported against giving the elections of Judges to the people.

The convention passed a resolution instructing the Legislature to so amend the laws as to give the election of Presidential Electors to the people. There was very little debate upon, or opposition to, the resolution.

The entire session of the day was devoted to killing the parish system of representation in the State Senate, and the work was so thoroughly accomplished that hardly enough of its friends were found to give the mourners a respectable appearance.

The question came up indirectly—on a proposition to give the City of Charleston two Senators instead of one as reported by the Legislative Committee. The debate was long and earnest, and called out the best talent of the convention. The merits and demerits of the parish system were discussed in all their length and breadth, and the amendment was finally adopted by a vote of 80 to 30. That swept away the system of seventy-five years—a system which did not work any particular disadvantage for thirty or forty years after its adoption, but which, for at least twenty-five or thirty years has operated with gross injustice. When all the property and population were in the sea-coast districts the system did well enough; but since the thorough settlement of the upper-country it has acted as a great monopoly for the benefit of Charleston and three or four neighboring districts. These districts, formerly having nineteen Senators, now get but six, and the power in the Senate is transferred to the upper portion of the State. Probably the parish system did more than any other agency to foster bad feeling between the upper and lower sections of the State, and the agitation for its abolition has been going on in the up-country for twenty years. The convention has accomplished in one day what more than half the State had in vain tried to accomplish in the Legislatures of all these successive years.

Eighth Day.

SEPT. 21.

The convention is engaged upon the first article of the new constitution—reported from the Legislative Committee, of which Chancellor INGLIS is Chairman, and the whole of this day, morning and evening sessions, has been spent upon the fifth section of the article. The article simply fixes the basis of representation in the House of Representatives of the General Assembly, but the debate has covered the whole question of suffrage and the basis of representation in both houses. The adoption, this morning, of a rule limiting each member to fifteen minutes in speaking, which rule was adopted after a sharp little debate, by 73 to 36, gave the debate a fragmentary character, and doubtless cut off half a dozen lengthy speeches. It gave some indication of views, however, and was not without general interest.

The article as it came from the committee fixes the basis of representation in the House as it stands in the old constitution—taxation and white population—while a subsequent article fixes the basis for the Senate area, that is, one Senator for each district.

Mr. JAMES L. ORR advocated this basis of representation—white population in the House and white population and taxation in the Senate—and moved to so amend the article under debate—fixing white population as the basis for the House. The proposition was pretty closely debated on its merits, and the scheme was rejected by yeas 24, nays 83.

Mr. CADWALLADER JONES, of York, wanted the basis of representation in the Senate to be property, and in the House white population, and submitted a series of amendments to carry out his view. This question was also debated on its merits, with some reference to its advantages for the different sections of the State, and finally rejected by yeas 20, nays 85.

Mr. ROBERT DOZIER, of Georgetown, proposed that the basis for representation in the House should be property, and all the inhabitants, white and black; and this proposition brought the negro directly upon the floor of the convention to the consternation of numerous delegates, and particularly of Gov. PERRY's special friend, Rev. Dr. BOYCE, of the Baptist Theological Seminary of Greenville, who, with much show of indignation, moved to lay the proposition on the table, without allowing debate, adding that he believed every true South Carolinian was prepared to vote upon it at once. This raised much feeling among a small knot of the ablest members of the convention, and he was forced to withdraw his motion to lay on the table. He renewed the motion at three different times during the afternoon, but each time was forced to withdraw it. It was evident that the convention as a body, however it might be with individual delegates, were not so much afraid of the African as to be unmindful of the advantages which might accrue through him.

There was during the day a great deal of frothy talk, through which it was found that the proposition stood upon three principal legs, and had several side-supports.

The question of its effect in State affairs received most attention from the speakers. The abolition of the parish system overthrew the power of the low-country in the Senate, which body has been controlled for the last thirty years unjustly by the City of Charleston and three or four neighboring districts. The adoption of this amendment, it was found, would ultimately give the control of the House to the low-country. The sectional feeling of the State was, therefore, at once enlisted for or against it; and some of the up-country members made furious speeches against it, while some of the Charleston delegation endeavored to win votes by appealing to the magnanimity of those who had killed the parish system.

The bearings of the amendment upon the question of Congressional representation were also of much interest to various gentlemen. Mr. DOZIER, himself, appeared to be chiefly concerned in this regard. He argued that as negroes are an element in the Congressional representation, it would be inconsistent to exclude them from the body politic as represented in the State Legislature. On what ground can we ask Congress, said he, to allow us four Representatives now, and probably seven, and at least six, after the next census, when our present white population gives us but two, if we deny the right of the negroes to be represented in our local government? This argument in other phraseology was used by a dozen or more delegates. On the other hand it was argued that there is no connection between the two; that the apportionment of your Representatives—two for whites, and two for three-fifths of the negroes—must stand till after the next census; and that then the whole population, black and white, must be counted in assigning the representation, unless Congress meantime amends the constitution, which it is not at all probable can be done.

The just claim of the negro to representation was advocated by a few members, including three or four of the ablest delegates in the convention. It was argued that he had heretofore been represented in both houses—directly as property in the lower house, and indirectly through the parish system in the upper house; and that it would be unjust to now cut him off from all representation. It will be outlawry to do so, said Chancellor INGLIS. On the other hand, it was held that if the negro be admitted into the body politic at all, he must be given a vote. This is but the entering wedge of negro suffrage, said Col. BION, and I oppose it as such. I am sure the mover does not mean it as such, and I am also sure none of those who support it mean it as such, said Mr. THOMSON, of Abbeville, but I am convinced it is but the stepping-stone to negro suffrage. You cannot, in my judgment, pass this amendment, said Mr. ORR, till you are prepared to follow it with one giving the negro the elective franchise, and I shall vote against it first, last, and all the time on that ground. Adopt this amendment, said Gen. McGOWAN, and you pass the political power of the State over into the hands of the negro.

So the debate raged for nearly three hours, and the amendment, much to the surprise of Rev. Dr. BOYCE—a cousin of W. W. BOYCE, ex-Federal Representative and ex-rebel Senator—failed by only seven majority; the votes standing yeas, 52; nays, 59.

This was considered as settling the dispute; and, without amendment, the section was agreed to as it came from the committee.

The end had not, however, been reached. The convention took a recess till this evening, during which the discussion among the eighty or ninety delegates at the Nickerson House was kept up with even more intensity than on the floor of the church. Several delegates were not satisfied with the vote they had given, and it was determined to return to the section. Accordingly as soon as the convention came together after the recess, a motion was made to recur thereto, which was carried by yeas, 52; nays, 48.

Mr. ALDRICH, chief of the fire-eaters, moved an amendment providing, in effect, that three-fifths of the negroes shall be counted, with the whites, in fixing the population-representation of the Lower House, the property-representation being also retained.

This proposition was debated two hours, and many of the younger and third-rate members committed themselves to it as a compromise between no-negro-representation and full-negro representation. The older heads then took the floor and made a dead set against it on the ground that the principle of negro representation is either right or wrong—if wrong, then this amendment should not be adopted even to benefit the low country, where the negro element will ultimately reside; and if right, then no compromise was admissible. Wherefore, Mr. ALDRICH was constrained to withdraw his amendment to disembarrass the convention.

Mr. NORWOOD, of Darlington, then moved a reconsideration of the vote by which Mr. DOZIER's amendment had been rejected at the morning session. He said he wasn't afraid of a discussion on negro suffrage, nor were his people afraid of it. Judge FROST, of Charleston, supported the motion to reconsider an argument showing the justice of the proposition to represent the negro in the Lower House, and indicating that the ignorance of this class of population was the effect of slavery, and urging that the material interests of the whites is the measure of effort for the well-being of the negro.

The motion to reconsider prevailed by 55 to 51, and the convention then adjourned.

Ninth Day.

SEPT. 22.

Sleep brings quietness of nerves, and so this morning there were no signs of yesterday's storm.

The Special Committee on Congressional Representation reported that the State is entitled to four Representatives, and they recommended the following division of the State: First district to be composed of the counties of Lancaster, Chesterfield, Marlborough, Darlington, Marion, Horry, Georgetown, Williamsburgh, Sumter, Clarendon and Kershaw; second district, Charleston, Colleton, Beaufort and Carnwell; third district, Orangeburgh, Edgefield, Abbeville, Lexington, Newberg, Richland and Fairfield; fourth district, Anderson, Pickens, Greenville, Lawrence, Spartanburgh, Union, York and Chester. The report gives general satisfaction and will probably be adopted.

The troublesome question of yesterday was very summarily disposed of by a motion to lay it on the table, which was carried without objection by 75 to 24. What wrought the great change in the members of the convention after they had voted by four majority to reconsider the question, it is impossible to even guess.

The election for members of the Legislature was fixed for the third Wednesday in October. The Senate will have thirty-two members, the House 124. The property qualification for members was stricken out, after some debate, by 59 to 47.

The qualifications of voters are as follows: Free white man, twenty-one years of age; not a pauper, nor soldier of the United States; citizen and resident in the State for two years, and in the district six months; if a foreigner shall have declared his intentions and been resident two years since declaring his intention to take up residence in the State. A proposition to require ability to read the constitution as a qualification was somewhat debated, but, of course, was lost.

A clause was inserted in the constitution, that, after 1869, no district shall have more than twelve Representatives. This was aimed at Charleston, which now has twenty. It passed by 61 to 48.

Tenth Day.

SEPT. 23.

The session was comparatively brief, the day being Saturday, and was spent upon the Executive article of the constitution. The Governor and Lieutenant-Governor are hereafter to be elected by the people, hold office for four years, and not be eligible for immediate reëlection. The property qualification is no longer required. A proposition to give the appointment of Secretary of State, Treasurer and Comptroller-General to the Governor, with the consent of the Senate, led to a very protracted and somewhat excited debate, and was finally lost by 39 to 72.

The main work of the convention is done, and leading delegates are confident a final adjournment will be reached by Wednesday next, the 27th. The only very important question remaining is whether negroes shall be allowed to testify in the courts. On that there will be some debate, but it will finally prevail.

THE PACIFIC RAILROAD.

First Train Through from St. Louis to Kansas City—Railroad Excursion Party.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Saturday, Sept. 30.

The first through train from St. Louis over the Missouri Pacific Railroad, reached here this morning, bringing the following distinguished persons: D. H. Gomson, Vice-President; Thomas McKissock, Superintendent of the Pacific Road; Thomas A. Scott, Vice-President of the Pennsylvania Central; H. J. Jewett, President Ohio Central; John D. Perry, President Union Pacific; A. Green, New-York; J. M. Davidson, Saratoga; Jas. Fisher, M. O. Partridge and Giles F. Filley, of St. Louis; J. P. Usher and lady, and Samuel Stinson and lady. This party will proceed on an excursion over the Union Pacific Railroad to Lawrence, Kansas, this afternoon, and return to-morrow. The Missouri Pacific Road is now in complete running order its entire length, and regular through trains will commence moving on Monday next.

The Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad.

STEUBENVILLE, Sunday, Oct. 1.

The Pittsburgh and Steubenville Railroad across the "Pan-handle," has been completed, and trains will commence running through from Pittsburgh to Columbus on and after to-morrow.

LOCAL INTELLIGENCE.

OUR NAVY.

Nationalities of U. S. Naval Officers—A Curious Table of Statistics—Nearly Fifty Nationalities Represented—The Ocean Contributing her Sons—What the States Have Done for the Navy.

It has been stated by many vain-glorious and bigoted foreigners that the personnel of our navy was in the majority composed of foreigners, and we have been at some pains to place before our readers the following statement of facts, gleaned from the best known authority, and thus to give credit to those to whom it is due. Of the total number of officers in the naval service at the close of the war, 5,956 were born in the United States, 748 were foreigners, and 889 did not furnish the place of their birth.

Of the latter number there were many who were born in the then rebellious States, and for prudential reasons did not forward their place of birth to the department, preferring to be classed among the "unknown' rather than suffer any inconvenience in event of capture or the failure of the Union cause. This number is not believed to be large, in fact in the minority. A few are known to be of foreign birth, while a large number were careless and unmindful of the order requesting them to send in their personal data. A number were prisoners in the hands of the enemy, and were unable to do so.

Of native-born Americans, New-York State has furnished the largest number, Massachusetts the next, Pennsylvania the next, and then comes Maine, which we had supposed would have furnished a very much larger quota, owing to her geographical position among the seaboard States. Little Rhode Island has furnished more men in ration to her size than many of the larger States bordering upon the ocean. The West has done nobly, and shows a record of naval heroes in keeping with her gigantic gifts of men to the land forces.

Almost every country on the face of the globe has sent its representatives. Portugal is not represented on our list, but we know of one or two who are numbered among the "unknowns" who boldly espoused the cause of justice and freedom, and have done valiant service for the Union.

Old Neptune sent eight of his sons to join in the struggle. Turks mingled with Greeks. Men of the East Indies vied with those of the West Indies in performing deeds of valor. While the Alpine born sailor fought side by side with the Hollander from the Lowlands, Bluenoses joined hands with Sandwich Islanders, Austrians with Poles, Cubans with Germans, Frenchmen with Russians, Hungarians with Italians, forming a link in the chain which bound together the tottering frame of the ship of the Union. These men were from all climes and countries from the Poles to the Equator, proving that among all are to be found those who, notwithstanding they were born in empires and kingdoms, and drew their first breath in the air of monarchy, were ready and willing to peril property and even life to aid in upholding our republican and free form of government. These incontrovertible facts silently but forcibly tell a tale which emperors and kings sitting on tottering thrones would fain banish from their memories. It is a picture they fear to contemplate, and in the bitterness of their fear and selfishness cry out against us, and finally we are taunted with sayings tending to take from us the merit of power and influence. The brave and gallant Irish have been our greatest allies by land and sea, and have nobly repaid the debt of gratitude for freedom, beneath the folds of our banner, when on their native soil they were borne down and oppressed by the heel of the tyrant. Even John Bull has furnished us with near two hundred men who, knowing they would be treated as men and as their merits deserved, left the blood-red flag to aid in establishing the stars and stripes over land and see. We are by no means ungrateful for the aid the noble fellows have given us, but we do not think they are quite entitled to all the credit of our successes and final triumphs. Nor do we believe that all of them think so, but there are some who are continually making themselves disagreeable and ridiculous by stating that "If it had not been for foreigners where would you have been to-day? What would could you have done without us!"

Without dwelling any further upon this subject, we will present our table of nationalities of all the officers in the United States Navy at the close of the war:

THE TACONY.

The gunboat Tacony, 12 guns, and one of the Atlantic squadron, having been thoroughly overhauled, has sailed from Boston for her station at Charleston. The following is a list of her officers: Commander, W. G. TEMPLE; Lieut.-Commander, H. M. Blue; Lieutenant, C. D. Jones; Passed-Assistant Surgeon, G. D. Slocum; Acting Assistant Paymaster, A. D. Bache; Acting Master, C. Wappenhaus; Acting Ensigns, W. McLeod, H. Jones; Mates, B. H. Hertman, W. H. Howland, W. H. Lecinet, F. C. Bailey; First Assistant Engineer, in charge, N. B. Clark; Second, G. E. Tower, H. C. Blye; Acting Third, W. E. Holland, M. H. Perry; Surgeon's Steward, Edward F. Dow.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Niagara and iron-clad Agamenticus have been ordered out of commission at the Boston yard.

The Brooklyn, flag-ship of the Brazil squadron, will be put in commission this week. She has been hauled out into the stream, and will sail soon.

The gunboat Dawn has never been a blockade-runner, as stated in a local journal noted for its unreliability in naval news. She will probably be sold at the next auction sale, having been a most useful vessel during the war.

The old store-ship Charles Phelps will be sold also. She was formerly a whale-ship.

Chief-Engineer W. W. W. WOODS' torpedo has met with unqualified favor in Europe, and DONALD MCKAY is making arrangements with the British Government for their use in their harbors.

THE NEW BRAZIL LINE.

The screw steamer Havana sailed on Saturday for Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, taking out the mails and a fair list of passengers. This steamer inaugurates the new line so much needed, and as business increases will be extended to Montivideo and Buenos Ayres. For a time the vessels will make monthly trips, but as soon as the company can build three new steamers they will sail semi-monthly.

Among the passengers we noticed two representatives of the press, one of whom goes to report specially upon the war on the La Platte, and the other to travel through Brazil extensively. The Havana will touch at St. Thomas, Para, Pernambuco, Bahia, and thence direct to Rio.

Coroners' Inquests.

SOLDIER FOUND DEAD IN DYCKMAN'S WOODS.

On Friday afternoon Policemen KING and HAYDEN, of the Thirty-second Precinct, found the body of a soldier in the woods near old Fort George, at One Hundred and Ninety-ninth-street. In the pockets they found a discharge paper, dated "Delancey House, D. C., July 28, 1865," and indicating that the bearer had been a corporal in Capt. VICTOR PRAXMARER'S Company, of the Forth-sixth New-York Veteran Volunteers, and that he was a native of Amsterdam, Holland, HENRY VAN NIEROP by name, 44 years of age, a coppersmith. Finding the throat apparently cut, and a razor in the deceased's pockets, the officers argued that he had cut his throat and deliberately put his razor away while his life's blood was ebbing; but Dr. WOOSTER BEACH, Jr., who made a postmortem examination on Saturday, found that the soldier's throat had not been cut, and could not find conclusive evidence of suicide. The corpse was so much decomposed that it was impossible to determine whether there had been any internal wounds, and the gash which the officers had mistaken for a cutting of the throat was a jagged wound extending from the mouth to the ear. Two pools of blood were visible within twenty feet of the spot where the body was found, and in the soldier's pockets was an empty bottle; and from these facts it may be inferred that while inebriated the soldier may have attempted suicide and perished from hemorrhage.

BY CORONER GAMBLE—DEATH OF MAJOR AUGUST HAURAND.

Major AUGUST HAURAND, who was thrown from a carriage at the Central Park one day last week, died at St. Luke's Hospital on Saturday. He was unconscious from the time of the accident to the hour of death.

NEW-JERSEY.

GRAND DEMONSTRATION AT ELIZABETH—SPEECHES BY GEN. HITE AND OTHERS.—A very large and enthusiastic meeting was held on Saturday evening, at Library Hall, Elizabeth. The hall was densely packed with a very respectable and appreciative audience, a great many ladies being present. The national colors were tastefully suspended from the sides of the building, and several banners bearing curious devices, such as, "WIRZ is no 'Fellow-citizen' of Ours," were on and around the platform. A fine brass band was in attendance, and discoursed some very excellent music. The meeting was called to order by A. J. CRANE, Esq., at 8 o'clock, and Hon. JOHN DAVIDSON was the first speaker who was introduced. He spoke in a very humerous and interesting manner for about one hour, holding the audience at one time in a rapture of thought, and at other times bursting out in raptures of applause. The constitutional amendment he advocated in very strong terms, and exposed the fallacy of the platform of the Democratic party, who he denounced as traitors in the strongest terms. The "stone of the corner" as he termed New Jersey, which was rejected, is, on the 1st of November, to be made the "chief stone of the corner." He described in flowery terms the valor and patriotism of the New-Jersey troops who fought in the late war, many of whom were present and appreciated all he said. His speech throughout was one of those spirit-stirring and eloquent appeals which never fail to produce a lasting conviction. At the conclusion of his remarks the band struck up a national air. Gen. HITE was then presented to the audience, whom he kept in a continual roar of laughter by the recitation of his comic anecdotes. The Copperheads he denounced as the worst enemies of the Union, for to save him he did not know where to place them, whether as rebels or as Union men; they were like the nigger on the fence—one time for the Union, and at another time for the rebels. He spoke at length of the character and services of Gen. ROSSEAU, whom he hoped the audience would have the pleasure of listening to before this campaign was over. Ask this man, said he, what he would do with these men who remained up North, grumbling, afraid to go and fight—talking of the constitutional measures and other matters, instead of fighting to save their country, and he would say to you, I would send them among their fellow-citizens down South. In referring to the sympathy which the Democrats professed to the soldiers, he said, soldiers, How many times were you allowed to vote while in camp? Ah! not at all. No; but you were denounced as Lincoln hirelings and had no right to vote. These Democrats say they are not in favor of negro suffrage, but are in favor of all other kinds of suffrage. Well, we are not. How would you like rebel suffrage? [Sensation.] Now this is the only State which has not accepted the constitutional amendment, and so long as the people of this State reject progression, so long will they lag in the progress of science, art and manufacture. For God when he made this nation, made it to work; and he made this government to carry out the principles of virtue and morality. The government tried to put down a rebellion, and still were willing to continue the accursed institution of slavery; and no victory was ever gained worth mentioning until the proclamation of emancipation came. But after that it was victory and success every step of the way. [Applause.]

UNION MEETING AT CALDWELL, N. J.—Old Essex turned out in all her might on Friday night last, at Caldwell. This was the second meeting during the campaign, and was a perfect success. The meeting was held at Jacobus Hall, a large attendance of ladies being present. The hall was gaily decked with evergreens interwoven with the starry flag. Portraits of our great and lamented President LINCOLN, of GRANT, SHERMAN, SHERIDAN, KILPATRICK and MARCUS L. WARD, the next Governor of New-Jersey, were hung around the hall. The meeting was called to order by LEWIS C. GROVER, Esq., a young and prominent member of the Newark bar, who, in a few brief and appropriate remarks, introduced Hon. JOHN DAVIDSON, of Elizabeth, N. J. The speaker gave a history of New-Jersey in the Revolutionary struggle, the war of 1812, and reviewed her early history, showing what a proud and prominent position she then occupied, and compared it with the pitiable condition she now occupies in the family of States, and who has placed her in this unenviable condition? The Democratic party. Who has made the name of Jerseymen synonimous with that of a rebel but the Democratic party? Who refused to allow her soldiers in the field to vote? The Democratic party. Who declared that her sons were fit to be soldiers, fit to fight, fit to die, fit to be starved in Andersonville, but unfit to vote? The Democratic party. Who disfranchised the soldier? The Democratic party, by a vote of 30 Democrats against 19 Union men. Who termed the rebellion "justifiable?" The Democratic party, by a vote on the Hewes' Monument Bill of 21 Democrats against 17 Union. Shame, eternal shame, upon such a party. They are now making New-Jersey act as a brake upon the great wheel which is rolling slavery out of the nation by the constitutional amendment. Who termed our soldiers "Lincoln satraps" and the "hired minions of Old ABE?" The Democratic party, and who can sustain the Democratic party now with such a record as this? THEODORE RUNYON said New-Jersey was "faithful among the faithless." If you call aiding the South, discouraging enlistments, casting ignominy upon our soldiers, and praying, as CHAUNCEY BURR prayed at Chicago, that the South might conquer the North—if you call that "faithful," then she has indeed been faithful to the rebels. Let's rally as one man to lift our State out of the Siberian bog in which she now lies; let us take her feet from the slippery path and miry clay, and plant them upon the eternal rock of justice. Then, and not till then, will New-Jersey be "faithful." After reviewing the Democratic platform at length, and holding up its tissues of falsehoods to the light of truth and history, the speaker closed with an earnest appeal to stand fast like men, and to do our duty in the right, as God gives us to understand it. Mr. DAVIDSON'S address of two hours and a half was listened to throughout with great attention, and frequently interrupted with great applause.

HUDSON COUNTY COURTS.—The Fall term of the Hudson County Courts will commence to-morrow, (Tuesday,) Judge BEDLE presiding, with Associate Judges CHAMBERS, STURGES and BOHNSTEDT. The criminal calendar is unusually large, the jail being full of prisoners, besides a large number who are out on bail. Among the most important cases to be tried are those of CHARLES MCIVER, charged with manslaughter; WM. WILBUR, with rape on a little girl, and JOHN B. BARKER, with the abduction of a little girl from Hudson City.

DEMOCRATIC COUNTY CONVENTION.—The Democratic County Convention, for the nomination of candidates for State Senator, Sheriff and three Coroners, will be held at the house of P. DOYLE, No. 51 Newark-avenue, Jersey City, on Friday next, at 2 P. M. The primary meetings for the election of delegates to the County and Assembly Conventions will be held on Wednesday evening, the 4th inst.

The October Term of the Law Courts.

The trial terms of the civil courts of law will commence to-day. During the Summer vacation business of a litigated character has accumulated rapidly, and the month of October begins with unusually heavy calendars. There will be this month no less than nine civil courts of record, whose jurors will be required in session, and this without including the Marine Court. They are as follows: The Supreme Court, Oyer and Terminer. Circuit, Part I., will be held by Justice LEONARD; Part II., by Justice BARNARD, in the General Term room, and Part III. by Justice SUTHERLAND, at No. 73 Duane-street. The General Term of this court adjourned over on Friday last. During the two weeks that it has been in session, a large number of important cases have been argued, and many of them disposed of. Mr. Justice CLERKE will hold the Special Term, and Mr. Justice INGRAHAM will preside at the Chambers of this court during the month.

In Part I. of the Common Pleas, Judge CARDOZO will preside, and Part II. will be held by Judge DALY; while the Chambers and Special Term will be held by Judge BRADY.

There will be a General Term of the Superior Court held by Chief-Justice ROBERTSON and Justices MONELL and GARVIN. The Special Term and Chambers will be held by Justice MONCRIEF.—The Trial Terms, Part I., by Justice MCCUNN, and Part. II. by Justice BARBOUR.

The United States Circuit and District Courts will also be opened for the trial of causes, on the second Monday of the month. In the City and State Courts especially, there are many prominent cases of public interest, which stand near the head of the calendars, and will doubtless be tried at an early day.

MONDAY, Oct. 2—A. M.

The official Custom-house returns of the Foreign Trade at the port of New-York for the month of August have been rendered. They show the following results, compared with the same month last year, to which are added the comparative figures for the first eight months of the calendar year.

The Import entries for August at New-York compare as follows with the corresponding month of the previous year, viz.:

	August, 1865.	August, 1864.
Dutiable goods direct	$15,903,743	$6,603,653
Dutiable Bonded	7,553,260	10,437,478
Free Goods	836,533	936,474
Total August entries	$24,293,536	$17,977,605

There was also entered during the month foreign Specie of the value of $182,072 as against $245,858 same month last year. The value of foreign Merchandise of previous importation withdrawn from Bond, is $9,661,136—or $2,107,876 more than went into Bond during the month. So that the amount of Merchandise actually marketed during the month, dutiable and free, is $26,401,412, on which the Gold Customs collected amounts to $13,113,689, or at the average rate of duty on all the marketed imports, (including free articles,) of 49⅝ ⅌ cent. The amount marketed in August, 1864, was $15,507,970, and the Customs $6,237,367.

The comparative values of Foreign Goods entered at the port of New-York, and of Foreign Goods actually marketed for the first eight months of the calendar years 1865–4 are as follows:

	1865. Jan. 1 to Aug. 31.	1864. Jan. 1 to Aug. 31.
Total entries	$124,161,963	$177,164,377
Total marketed	$130,852,005	$141,222,295
Customs paid	59,587,543	52,286,437
Average Duty	45¾ ⅌ cent.	37 ⅌ cent.

The Export clearances to Foreign ports, from New-York, for the month of August were:

	August, 1865.	August, 1864.
Domestic Produce	$14,500,860	$26,617,850
Foreign reëxported	180,217	2,358,319
Gold and Silver	1,554,398	1,001,813
Total August Clearances	$16,235,475	$29,977,982
Average price Gold	144 ⅌ cent.	254 ⅌ cent.

The Exports of all descriptions for the first eight months of the calendar year are:

	1865. Jan. 1 to Aug. 31.	1864. Jan. 1 to Aug. 31.
Domestic Produce	$95,170,873	$138,256,445
Foreign Reëxports	3,248,964	12,234,703
Specie	20,193,873	32,101,263
Total	$118,613,710	$182,592,411
Average of Gold	151 ⅌ cent.	192 ⅌ cent.

The difference between a state of War and the normal condition of Peace on the trade of the Country is thus illustrated by its relative ability to consume Foreign Merchandise in two Summer months of 1864 and of 1865 respectively. The illustration would be still more striking in the consumption of Domestic Manufactures, if we had the means of arriving at the exact figures at the port and market of New-York. Not the least notable point in the annexed figures is that the Government derived nearly twenty-three millions Gold revenue, on forty-six millions of Imports marketed, which sum of consumption is less than in July and August, 1860, before the War, when only nine millions of Customs Revenue was derived from $48,889,261 Foreign Goods marketed:

FOREIGN GOODS MARKETED AT NEW-YORK.

Official Return.	1865. Peace.	1864. War.	1860. Peace.
July	$19,674,662	$10,684,485	$23,948,816
August	26,401,412	15,507,970	24,940,445
Total two months	$46,076,074	$26,192,455	$48,889,261
Customs in gold	22,892,966	9,823,212	9,000,309
Average duties	49¾ ⅌ c't.	37⅛ ⅌ c't.	18½ ⅌ c't.

The Import Entries of the past week, including the Dry Goods return in our last paper amount to $5,845,786, as against the total entries of $3,571,006, same week last year. The Export Clearances of Domestic Produce amount to $2,892,529, against $4,507,504 same week last year. The export of Specie amounts to $947,971, against $604,000 same week last year. The Customs for the week are $2,623,073. The receipts of Cotton, coastwise and by railroad, are 23,032 bales. The number of emigrant passengers arrived during the week is 6,683.

The Import entries of Foreign Merchandise at New-York since the 1st of January are officially (to 1st September) and semi-officially (since) reported, as follows—the small entries of Foreign Specie being omitted:

There was no variation in the price of Gold Saturday. The shipments of Gold bars, &c., by the steamers of the day, are $652,990, making for the whole week, $947,971, of which $781,574 was in Gold bars.

The Stock Exchange opened with rather general firmness on the Railway list, when a strong disposition was manifested to resist any material advance in prices, especially against Reading, which was sold on 30@60-day' options at 1@1½ per cent. below the cash price. Only one session of the Boards was held. At 3 o'clock on the street there was a renewed Bull excitement on Reading, Michigan Southern, (of which nearly 10,000 Shares were taken at 70@70½c.) and New-York Central, and a general upward feeling in the Railway speculation. Mr. JOHN J. CISCO, for more than ten years, up to 1864, the efficient and popular Assistant Treasurer of the United States in this city, returns to Wall-street to-day, as a Private Banker, in connection with his son, who was also several years in the Treasury Office. The banking-house which they establish at No. 33 Wall-street will have ample capital, as well as a large experience in the financial affairs of the country, and will be under the firm style of JOHN J. CISCO & SON. We take pleasure in referring to their card in our advertising columns.

The National Croton Bank, with a capital of $200,000, goes into business this morning, at No. 17 Nassau-street, with Mr. W. B. HATCH as President, and Mr. R. M. HEDDEN as Cashier.

The new Forty-second-street and Grand-street Ferry Railway Company will pay to their shareholders, this morning, a half-yearly Dividend of 5 per cent. on the Capital of $750,000, at the office of Mr. JOHN KERR, the Treasurer, No. 53 Leonard-street.

NEWS OF THE DAY.

GENERAL NEWS.

Maj.-Gen. HOWARD, who has just returned to Washington from a tour of inspection in Virginia, makes a very favorable report of the condition of the freedmen. He has established a system for the adjudication of all questions relating to labor, contracts, minor offences, &c., from which he expects good results. Gen. HOWARD will soon start on a new tour of inspection which will embrace the whole South.

The Secretary of the Treasury will to-day issue the usual monthly statements of the public debt. It will not differ materially from the preceding one. A slight increase in compound interest notes and a still further decrease of certificates of indebtedness will be apparent.

The accounts of postmasters in the States recently under rebel domination are now undergoing a strict examination by the Postmaster-General, for the purpose of instituting suits against those found to be indebted to the United States.

The September session of the Academic Board for the examination of candidates for admission to the Naval Academy closed, on Saturday, at Annapolis. Eighty candidates in all have been examined, of whom the greater number were accepted. The names of the successful candidates have not yet been made public.

Among the witnesses who have been recently summoned for the defence in the Wirz trial are Robt. E. Lee, Joseph Johnston, Howell Cobb and Robert Ould, late rebel Generals, and Joseph Brown, late rebel Governor of Georgia. Other prominent leaders of the rebellion will also be summoned before the close of the trial. Several days will probably elapse before these parties are examined. The trial is expected to continue several weeks longer.

The Alabama Convention on Friday passed an ordinance by a vote of 59 to 16, which practically abolishes the right of admission of negro testimony in courts of justice in all difficulties arising between negroes themselves, or between whites and negroes. This is to continue until the adjournment of the next Legislature, giving that body the privilege of making the organic law of Alabama.

The Secretary of State has been officially informed of the death of one of the foremost diplomats of Greece—ALEXANDRE MAEROCADATO—who died on the 18th of August, at Aegina. This gentleman had distinguished himself as the organizing and systematizing element in Greece previous and after the revolutions of independence of Greece. He drew up the declaration of independence, and has served as president of every National Assembly but the last.

A letter from Pepperell, in the north part of Middlesex County, Mass., says that the forest trees will soon die unless there is rain. Apples are good for nothing. The wells are nearly all dry. People, horses, oxen and cows travel one and two miles to the brooks for drink and for family use. Grain and saw mills about the town have been stopped, and the prospect is that the farmers will have to send to Boston or Lowell for meal to keep their cattle from starving.

Gov. SHARKEY, of Mississippi, has issued a proclamation, accepting the proposition of Col. THOMAS, transferring the right to try case, involving the rights of freedmen for the Freedmen's Bureau to the civil courts, provided that no distinction shall be made in the administration of justice, on account of color.

JAMES FERGUSON, of Barnet, Vt., 95 years of age, a native of Scotland, can walk, run or jump with men much younger. He has voted every Presidential election from WASHINGTON's second to LINCOLN's second election, and to all appearances is good for two or three more.

One day last week, in New-London, a well-dressed young man was led into the depot helplessly drunk, and laid down in one corner, out of way. He belonged to a respectable family, and had the suit in which he was to be married under his arm.

Knoxville, Tenn., must be a nice place to live in. The Chattanooga Gazette of the 28th ult. says: "A gentleman from Knoxville on Wednesday, reported everything quiet—stores all closed and only ten men dead."

We publish this morning a very interesting correspondene, which gives the secret history of the formation of the Southern Independence Association in London.

An ordinance has passed the City Council of Augusta, Me., prohibiting the erection in certain localities of wooden buildings exceeding twelve feet in height in the highest part of the roof.

Last year, Mr. DANIEL O. SAVORY, of Sunapee, N. H., raised a potato of the Orono variety which weighed three pounds. This year he planted that potato, and obtained sixty-three pounds of potatoes.

A milk company has been formed in Bangor, which will receive milk for several neighboring towns, and deliver the same to families in quart cans for from five to six cents a quart.

The hours of labor in the mills at Woonsocket, R. I., have been reduced to eleven, and the operatives are much rejoiced at the change. Heretofore they have labored fifteen hours per day.

A private letter from a prominent military officer at Houston, Texas, says that military affairs in that State possess no interest whatever.

The first through train from St. Louis to Kansas City over the Missouri Pacific Railroad, reached the latter city on Saturday morning.

The Nashville municipal election for city officers took place on Saturday. It passed off very quietly. Mr. M. BROWN was chosen Mayor.

The Chicago Tribune says there is a mania for killing negroes in Union County, Ill.

The Nashville Dispatch of Sept. 28 says the Fall trade in that city is very active and extensive.

FROM EUROPE.

The steamship Allemania, from Southampton, Sept. 20, arrived at this port last evening. She brings three days' later intelligence. The Fenian agitation in Ireland continues to absorb public attention. A large number of arrests have been made by the Irish Government, and it was supposed that others would follow. The authorities are taking every precaution to prevent the movement from attaining formidable proportions. As a general thing the English papers treat the whole matter with ridicule. Most of the Paris journals take the same view of it. At the same time it is considered politic to take a firm stand, and show the Fenian leaders that the government is ready and able to put them down with unsparing severity. Accounts from France represents the crops as in a very favorable condition. The official Gazette of Vienna contradicts the rumor that the government intends to establish in the German Provinces of Austria a system of provincial self-government. Herr VON BISMARCK has been elevated to the rank of Count. The Spanish Minister to Italy has been officially received by VICTOR EMANUEL.

Chills and Fever, in an Economical Point of View.

It has been a subject of very general complaint this season, with those who have lived in the suburbs, that chills and fever have prevailed to an unusual extent. The moisture of the early part of the year, and the intense heat of the Fall—the former in overflowing the marsh lands and the latter in tempting to late out-door enjoyment—explain this aggravating visitation. Long Island and Staten Island have, of course, been the principal theatres of its ravages, but the west bank of the Hudson and both sides of the Sound have not by any means been spared. Wherever indeed there was marsh land in the neighborhood, there the residents were surely set on the chatter and the burn.

All this could be remedied by proper drainage, and as the subject comes up with such force, it is entitled to some general discussion. The presence of any kind of miasmatic influence in the neighborhood of a great city is an unqualified misfortune. It is nature's declaration that man has not done his duty. There is no doubt that the thousands of miles of untillable land with which we are surrounded; land that is sloppy, swampy, or marshy, is the cause of intermittent fever. Nor is there any reason to question that this land could readily be drained and reclaimed.

On the continent of Europe, this subject has for many years been one of great interest. In Southern Europe, indeed, it has become an important branch of civil engineering. The lands there reclaimed, where the work has been perfectly done, are now among the most valuable and productive that can be found. So, too, in England, a huge district, known as the "Bedford Level," containing many thousand acres, and lying in the counties of Huntingdonshire, Norfolk and Suffolk, has at length been perfectly recovered. Here, as in every other instance, the ground is the richest anywhere about it. So attractive, indeed, has it become from this fact, and so thickly settled is it in consequence with small farmers, that a new county is likely to be made out of it.

Waste, watery lands will not hold manure until they are completely and thoroughly drained. The grass which they produce is of a subaqueous kind. The stock that feeds upon it speedily becomes thin, diseased and putridly attractive to the millions of flies that torment their lives out of the poor creatures. The air in the vicinity is heavy, moist and mephitic. It is injurious to human life, and utterly destructive to the comfort which one expects to find in the shady groves and pleasant meadows of the outskirts and on the beautifully situated islands we have named. Now if these grounds were drained they would require no manure for many years; they would produce overwhelming crops of hay, potatoes, &c.; would form inexhaustible pasturage ground for the marketmen of New-York, and lastly but not leastly there would be an end to intermittent fever, to mosquitoes and the other terrors which at present surround a residence in the country and make it almost intolerable.

The Bedford Level, to which we have just referred, was drained at great and unnecessary cost—owing to an interruption in the works of fifteen years, during which they naturally fell into bad repair. Nevertheless the property has been richly and amply remunerative. It is probable that the same mechanical troubles would not embarrass the American engineer, especially in the vicinity of the city. It is quite certain that the reclamation of the lands to which we have made reference, is neither impossible and would certainly be productive of great and beneficial results. We think that the attention of our engineers and practical-thinking monied men might well be attracted to it. We believe that most or quite all of what is called "salt meadow" might at once and at little cost be rescued from the waters. These marshes already are sufficiently high and firm to be arable were it not for the tidal flow. If this occur but once a year, it is sufficient to render profitable cultivation impossible. If the tide could be kept at low water mark the land would at once become dry enough. This necessary work of improvement could be effected at a small cost, for our tides here are by no means high, except at rare intervals when they are affected by some extraordinary eastern storm. Thus, if no better plan can be devised, the one adopted by the Duke of BEDFORD could be introduced at a decreased cost and with the certainty of positive results.

We have heard it estimated that there are in the vicinity of New-York, say within a circle of fifty or sixty miles from the city, about one million acres of this totally unproductive and waste land, which, if reclaimed, would be the most fertile and valuable on this continent. The same may be said to some extent of all our cities bordering on or in the vicinity of the Atlantic coast. The soil in many respects resembles that of some of the Western and Southwestern river flats, but it is in reality more productive and durable, if the mere saline matter brought in by the tide can be kept out. It does not suffer from the periodical washings of the high ground in the neighborhood, bringing with them all kinds of stony and sandy debris, which can never form manure. The soil of these marshes is made from the decomposition of whatever they have naturally and annually produced for untold ages. It is as fine and pure as guano, and probably will not require manuring for centuries.

If this land, then, which is now worse than valueless, (as it is a source of untold misery,) were only reclaimed and sold for two hundred dollars an acre, it would create an additional and substantial wealth to the city and State of two hundred millions of dollars, and also create a large increase to taxable property, which would materially lessen the burdens of all other real estate in the counties where such reclamations were made. Where there is such a large and important work, it is certainly worth while to call on the Universal Yankee Nation for a cheap and easy way of doing it. Drainage is the only cure for chills and fever. We can economically thrust those complaints from our door by its aid.

Exodus.

The great romances, and the great matters of fact are all marvellously alike in quality, and in the most poetic deed there is the keenest sense of use. In other times, when the world was in its youth, it did epic things consciously, and valued them for their poetry; now that it is grown old and full of wiseacres, its romance, like that of a middle-aged man, is unconscious, and hidden and forgotten in an obvious utility. But there never was anything so epic sung in the old times as an event of our own, which till now has been set to no higher music than the strains of the local reporters; to which Jenkins, not Homer is poet.

During the present week a national ship will bear from our port nearly a thousand good women, who leave homes in our Atlantic civilization, and carry its piety and hope to the western shores of the continent, there to help build a fairer and nobler state and society, far from the old-world influences that weaken and corrupt us here. These women are most of them young girls, from the shelter of farmhouse roofs in New-England, where the war that took away a brother or father has given back want and hardship in his place; and others are the widows of those who fought to keep us our homes, and fell to lose their own. But, whoever they are, and whencesoever they come, it is certain that those gentle pioneers go out to the West with a high sense of the purpose to which they are devoted, and with hopes educated and purified by the adversities attendant upon the efforts of woman at self-help in the East. All will part from some beloved thing—and all will taste the bitterness of exile in leaving places endeared by sorrow and trial. From one an aged mother shall part in doubt of earthly reunion; on the neck of one a poor old father shall weep; to one the hands and hopes of a brother shall cling, his reason applauding her resolution to be gone, his heart forboding, and imploring her to stay; to one, an orphan, but not friendless, tender friends shall say farewell; on one, a widow, the love of neighbors who have known her need and succored it, shall fondly wait; after every one there shall somehow, somewhere linger good-will and regret.

There is infinite pathos always in the courage of woman; for their courage is not in defiance of danger, but often in ignorance of it, often in trust of it. Their faith is so strong that they think evil cannot harm them; they love so blindly that they cannot believe hate sees; they hope so nobly that it seems impossible destiny should disappoint them. Upborne by this splendid and touching courage, most of these women will set sail upon their long journey to the West full of trust that they have left evil days behind them here, and in spite of their experience of life's vicissitudes, will look to find in Washington Territory a promised land, where, if they work faithfully in the places alotted to them, neither trouble nor wrong shall visit them. They know that there is peril everywhere, and yet they trust it shall not come near them there. Every one, while seeking to better her own state, has some unselfish purpose in view, and no crusade of Christian cavaliers, outnumbering these women by tens of thousands ever departed with more generous faith and hope upon a nobler work. Conscious of this nobility of aim, they trust that fate shall spare them to their work.

Mr. MERCER, under whose guidance and care they go, has assumed a responsibility which few men would care to lay upon themselves; yet we have no reason to doubt that he is worthy to bear it. He has thus far conducted a mission, full of heroic poetry, in the most practical and common-sensible way. He has held out great hopes and made great promises, and he has proven his good faith by setting his whole fortune upon the chances of success. The Government furnishes him merely the vessel for the transportation of his colony, and he pays from his own purse the cost of provision, and of manning and running the steamer, trusting the honor of his colonists for repayment from their earnings in vocations he has promised them. He sails with his charge, and it must be his to promote good feeling throughout the voyage. The venture has comic aspects which will suggest themselves, and the imagination cannot help figuring the awful task of reducing to harmony the multitudinous prejudices, caprices and assumptions of seven hundred young ladies. Forty married men go with Mr. MERCER, and twenty young men will be his allies; but this body is as a handful in contrast with the overwhelming numbers of the ladies, and might be swept into the sea in a single tempest of passion. His trust, therefore, must be in them during the voyage, as theirs in him at the end; and we believe neither will have cause of disappointment.

From our shores many expeditions, involving great hope and high purpose, have departed before now; but the world has had no worthier object of anxiety than this; and many curious doubts, as well as sympathizing expectations, must follow this exodus of good women on their voyage around the Antarctic cape, and up the long Western shore of the continent to the distand land of promise. May the seas be held aloof from harming them on their way, and only fall to engulf the evil that would pursue. May they find cordial welcome in their new home; and may there grow from their happiness and love on that uncontaminated shore, a populous civilization, full of religion, industry and peace.

Judge Lott's Decision in the Cheshire Case.

If there were any expectations that the habeas corpus proceedings in the case of CHARLES CHESHIRE before the Supreme Court in Kings County, would result in a conflict of authority between the courts of the State and the Government of the United States, those expectations were brought to nothing by the decision of the case by Judge LOTT on Saturday last. The position of the matter was this: CHESHIRE, who was one of the Supervisors of Kings County and a member of the Enrolling Board, was tried before a court-martial and convicted of receiving money improperly in connection with his position, and was sentenced to be fined and imprisoned.

The Secretary of War designated the Penitentiary at Albany as his place of imprisonment, and thither CHESHIRE was carried. A habeas corpus was sued out in his behalf before Judge LOTT, directed to Capt. PILLSBURY, the Warden of the Prison, ordering him to produce CHESHIRE before the Court in Brooklyn, that the cause of his imprisonment might be inquired into.

On the day named in the writ, Capt. PILLSBURY was present in court but did not produce CHESHIRE. On the contrary, he made return to the writ that although CHESHIRE was in his custody, under the sentence of the court-martial, which sentence was set forth and the jurisdiction of the court-martial averred, yet since he left Albany he had heard by telegraph that the prisoner had been, by order of the President, transferred from his custody to that of another officer, and that he could not therefore produce him in court.

Upon this return a motion was made for an attachment against PILLSBURY for contempt of court, in not producing his prisoner in court, as directed by the writ. And it was very confidently expected that Judge LOTT would, in his decision, take very high ground, and would stand forth as the defender of State rights and the rights of the citizen, against what was claimed to be an outrageous assault upon both by the Federal Government. Judge LOTT's somewhat intemperate language upon the hearing as to an apparent distrust of the State courts by the United States Government, and as to the possible advantages of dissolving the government, if such were to be the state of things, were calculated to lend countenance to this expectation.

But a sober second thought, and a careful examination of the arguments and authorities of Mr. SILLIMAN, the United States District-Attorney, who represented the case for the government, apparently brought him to a different way of looking at the subject; for on Saturday, after having held the subject under consideration for some weeks, he announced that he had decided to deny the motion for the attachment and to discharge the writ of habeas corpus.

It is no doubt true that since the hearing the Democracy of this State have declared themselves the only true and staunch supporters of President JOHNSON, and that it would not have looked very well for a Democratic Judge, so soon after that declaration was made, to have undertaken to punish an officer for contempt of court, because he had obeyed a direction given him by the President. But we need not go so far as that to find reason for the judge's yielding his assent to the legal positions taken on behalf of the government before him. They were, indeed, so strong that a contrary decision would have indicated a disregard of the authority of decided cases and settled principles, which could hardly spring from anything short of most virulent partizanship.

Among the arguments urged in behalf of the government it was said that as there was no traverse of the return, the facts set forth in it must be taken to be true, a position which could hardly be controverted. And inasmuch as that return set forth the decision of the court-martial and alleged that CHESHIRE was amenable to its jurisdiction, the applicant could not be heard now to allege or argue that he was not subject to that jurisdiction, and this position also seems to be irrefragible. Then again the Supreme Court of the United States decided in the case of BOOTH, who as will be recollected was ordered to be discharged on habeas corpus by the Supreme Court of Wisconsin, that an officer who holds a prisoner by authority of a court of the United States must not produce him before a State court when called upon to do so by a habeas corpus, but must simply return that he holds the prisoner by virtue of such United States authority, and that thereupon it becomes the duty of the State court to discharge the writ and go no further in the matter. And accordingly it was urged that as PILLSBURY had acted in strict conformity to this decision of the Supreme Court, by returning that the prisoner was in his custody by virtue of the decision of the court-martial, which was none the less a court of the United States because it was a court-martial, this court, instead of punishing him for a contempt of court, was bound to take the same view of the case as he did, and to take no further proceedings in the matter.

These arguments alone would seem to be conclusive. But there was another equally so, in the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus in all such cases by President LINCOLN, "as long as the rebellion shall continue." It was urged in opposition to this argument that the rebellion does not still "continue," but, as we all know, is at an end, and therefore the time fixed when the suspension of the writ of habeas corpus should cease, has arrived. But "no," said the counsel for the government," this suspension must continue until the same power which declared the rebellion to exist, viz., the Executive, shall declare that it no longer continues. It cannot be that such a question as that can be allowed to depend upon the decision of a court or jury, whether as matter of fact the rebellion has ceased. It is a political question, and the courts are bound to adopt that view of it which the government adopts. And till the government shall declare that the rebellion no longer continues, the courts must treat the habeas corpus as suspended in the cases provided." This view of the case was also adopted by Judge LOTT in the verbal announcement of his decision.

We hope the Judge will find time to write out his opinion. There are those in this State, and elsewhere, who need yet to be enlightened on the respective duties of the State and Federal courts, and who need, also, to be instructed that, politically, the rebellion still continues, and will do so until the restoration of peace and order and the forms of law and government has so far progressed that the President shall feel himself justified in announcing that we have again returned to the normal condition of things. Till then the courts, as well as the government, must act as befits the existing state of affairs.

AMUSEMENTS.

The matinee on Saturday brought the first week of Mr. MARETZEK's season to a brilliant close. The opera was "Faust," concerning the evening performance of which we have already spoken. There is nothing to be added now except that Mr. CARL BERGMANN conducted for the first time this season, and with all his accustomed point and intelligence. The attendance was brilliant, and fully up to the standard of former years. No form of entertainment has been accepted more cheerfully than this. Indeed it has often occurred to us that Mr. MARETZEK might occasionally change the order of performances with advantage to himself. The heart of Flora Fitz-Flimsey would throb with delight were she told that there would be three matinees and only two soirees in the week. Imagine the consternation which that fair creature's amazing bonnets would produce by the repeated shocks of three diurnal appearances at the Academy of Music!

"Ione"—an opera to which our public at once took kindly—will be renewed to-night for the first time in two years. The distribution is unusually strong, and affords an opportunity for the début of Mr. MARETZEK's new prima-donna, Mlle. BOSISIO, in the title rôle. The lady is quite young, and her personal appearance will not be unnoticed among her other attractions. The urgent but unfortunate Glauco is represented by Signor MAZZOLENI, a gentleman with whom the part is identified. We need say nothing of this favorite tenor's enviable position in the public esteem. He will be welcomed back with enthusiasm. Miss ADELAIDE PHILLIPS, Signor BELLINI and Signor ANTONUCCI complete the cast. "Ione" will be played to-night and to-morrow night. On Wednesday "Ernani" is to be produced for the début of a new baritone, Signor MARRA. It will be seen that these are busy times for Mr. MARETZEK, especially when it is remembered that the "Africanie" demands all the spare study of the company. MEYERBEER's great work will be brought out toward the end of next month.

Our readers will notice, by a reference to our advertising columns, that there are no fewer than thirteen regular places of amusement now open to the public. The entertainments offered at these establishments are of the most varied character, and adapted naturally to the locality in which they are situated and the palates of the patrons who reside thereabout. We can only hastily glance at the bills for to-night. Commencing up-town, we have seen already what is to be done at the Academy of Music. In the immediate vicinity is Wallack's, where the comedy of the "Double Gallant" (of which we speak below) is repeated for the second time. At the Winter Garden, (also referred to in another place,) "Our American Cousin" will be repeated. At Niblo's Garden, the ever welcome Ravels offer a new and varied programme. At the Olympic, there are a new actress and a new play. For the moment, we must be content with Mrs. WOOD's name as lessee only, for she does not herself appear in "Lolah." The bright, particular star for this piece is a Miss LUCY RUSHTON, from the Haymarket Theatre, London. The drama is of the spectacular kind, arranged in tableaux and abounding in astonishing situations. It was written, we are informed, for Miss RUSHTON, and has been played by that lady with much success in the English Provinces. At the Broadway Theatre, Mme. CELESTE enters upon her second and last week. Her engagement, we are sorry to say, has not been successful. It has failed to attract those numerous friends of a former career, which were reasonably expected to take an interest in these farewell performances. It were vain to seek another public now. During the week the "French Spy," and the "Woman in Red" will be alternated, beginning to-night with the former piece. At Barnum's Museum the dramatic performances in the afternoon are different to those of the evening. At the latter the still popular drama of the "Roll of the Drum" is the attraction, whilst at the former the musical drama of "Asmodeus" and the comedietta called "Is he Jealous" will be performed. Miss SALLIE PARTINGTON has been added to Mr. BARNUM's company, and will appear in these pieces; also in "Our Sally," a farce played in the evening. At Fox's Old Bowery Theatre a new sensation play called the "Avalanche" will be produced, followed by the pantomime of the "Red Gnome," and the drama of the "Sanctuary." Surely a liberal bill of fare. At Lingard's New Bowery Theatre Mr. EDDY enters upon the last week of his eminently successful engagement, appearing in the grand spectacular drama of "Faustus; or, the Demon of the Drachenfels." Mr. EDDY is the Mephistopheles. The afterpiece is the romantic drama of the "Blue Dwarf." At the Hippotheatron, an entire change of programme is announced. The company is an excellent one, both in a bi- and quadrupedal point of view. At the American Theatre, No. 444 Broadway, a change is also made. Several new and original acts will be introduced for the first time. At Wood's Minstrels, No. 514 Broadway, the Cuban wonder, Señor LOUIS VAYO, makes his first appearance to-night in the "Fall of Mexico;" and at Bryant's, the excelsior troupe appear in "Les Miserables" and other side-splitting scenes. To return to our starting-point, the Academy of Music, HERRMANN, the best of prestidigitators, will give two exhibitions of his extraordinary skill on the only off-nights of the week, Thursday and Saturday.

The Bateman concerts came to a completely satisfactory termination on Saturday evening, when Irving Hall was literally besieged. Not only the hall, but the neighborhood of the hall, was alive with the lady's admirers. Of the concert it is unnecessary to speak. It was fully equal to its predecessors, and in the matter of heartiness toward the prima donna, somewhat surpassed them. When Mlle. PAREPA left the building she was vociferously cheered by her admirers, and on returning to her hotel, (the Clarendon,) was complimented with a serenade by Dodsworth's Band. The lady appeared at the window and very pleasantly thanked her friends for their kindness, after which the world once more moved on its axis and the city cars resumed their regular trips. Mr. BATEMAN and his artists leave for Boston by this morning's boat. The first concert in the great hall there is on Wednesday evening. We shall be mistaken if in this case our Bay State friends do not fully indorse the verdict of New-York.

Mr. JAMES M. WEHLI, the pianist, has returned from Europe, whither he went for the vacation after his successful Western trip last season. Mr. WEHLI is under engagement with Mr. JARRETT, of Boston, and appeared in the Tremontane City, at the Music Hall, on Sunday last. His success was complete. He is a virtuoso who cannot fail to please the public. We notice, by the way, that several of Mr. WEHLI's compositions have recently been published by S. BRAINARD & SON, Cleveland, Ohio.

Miss OLIVE LOGAN announces two literary evenings at Irving Hall this week; on Tuesday and Thursday next, when this brilliant young artist will give readings from the best poets—and the worst.

Mr. TOM TAYLOR's dramatic pen can hardly be said to have improved since he wrote "Our American Cousin," "Still Waters Run Deep," and "The Ticket-of-Leave Man." It seems, indeed, to have lost in quality what it has, perhaps, gained in the mere mechanic habit of producing quantity. The works we have named are marked by good construction, lively dialogue, a reasonable number of situations, and an effort, in each instance successful, to portray individual character. In his later productions Mr. TAYLOR devotes himself mainly to sensations, of which he is by no means a master. The "Serf," lately produced at Wallack's, is the culmination of this tendency, and a very unequal and common-place culmination at that. The fault of all literature in England is, that it lends itself too readily to popular demand. Success is sometimes too successful. If the writer of a novel or a play succeeds in hitting the public taste, he at once sets to work to supply the trade, wholesale, retail, and for exportation. Others do the same, and so the town is flooded. The result is a steady falling off in the quality of the wares produced—a falling off which we detect distinctly in the case of Mr. TAYLOR—and a preference then arises for the more carefully manufactured wares of some one else—like BOUCICAULT for instance, who rarely hurries his work. Mr. TAYLOR has traveled so long on his reputation, that it seems to us possible that he may have arrived at his journey's end.

He would not, however, have been displaced so easily had he continued to produce such amusing pieces as "Our American Cousin," a work by no means of the first-class, but very good and pleasant in its place. Manufactured expressly for the American market, it boasts of a surreptitious characterization which the author would hardly have ventured upon had the piece been written for London. We refer, of course, to Lord Dundreary. So, too, that other part of Asa Trenchard would scarcely have found its way on the canvas but for the market to which the play was destined. The amount of padding these two parts have since received is simply enormous. Every Asa Trenchard fills up the part according to his particular knowledge or fancy of the Vermont dialect; and every Lord Dundreary according to his own microcosm of aristocratic life and absurdity.

Thus Mr. CLARKE's Asa is entirely unlike Mr. JEFFERSON's. It is less Yankeefied, more broad and comical, and not so clearly a sketch of a shrewd farmer, pretty well used to the world and not easily taken aback by anything to be seen or experienced in it. In the opening scene, Mr. CLARKE presents him as suspicious rather than shrewd, and bold but awkward in the presence of his aristocratic relatives. An English ploughman would hardly wriggle more superfluously in such a situation. This absence of self-possession causes the dialogue (which is rather of the no-you-don't sort) to seem intentionally rude, when, in fact, it is only intuitively smart. We were glad when the curtain descended on Asa's shower bath. In the subsequent acts Mr. CLARKE more than redeemed himself. In the various scenes with Mary Meredith he was admirable, especially in that where the lives of the twain flow for the first time together "at the rushing of the lips." It was here that Mr. CLARKE, freeing himself from all trammels, even that of the dialect, gave ample scope to his best powers and touched gently the momentary sentiment that hesitates between a smile and a tear. The first act will, we hope, be relieved of some of its gaucherie. Mr. CLARKE's rendering of Asa will then be a most creditable, and, in some respects, remarkable performance.

It was the boast of Mr. SOTHERN, before he went to London, that he had long ceased to speak a word of the original text of his part. Lord Dundreary was indeed a hairy nothing with a local habitation and a name. How far Mr. W. S. ANDREWS follows the example of his predecessor in this respect we know not, but he certainly treads closely and neatly in Mr. SOTHERN's shoes in every other particular. It is we believe avowedly an imitation, and as such most excellent. The house was kept in the best of humor whenever Mr. ANDREWS was on the stage, and it is but right to say that a good part of the success of the evening was owing to this gentleman's very humorous effort.

Mr. JOHN DYOTT made his reappearance here as Abel Murcott, and played the part with a sufficiency of melodramatic coloring, but without dragging it down to the blue-fire point. The Coyle of Mr. W. EDWARDS was not so happily toned, and in truth began with rather a large display of the colored illuminator we have named. Mr. EDWARDS' make-up was bad. A wrinkled, yellow bag, placed on the top of the head, and looking like the wilted rind of a pumpkin, does not convey a satisfactory idea of that polished and highly-cultivated clearing which time makes in the hyperian forest. The Binney of Mr. PETERS was, of course, excellent. We were sorry to notice that the gentleman has not yet fully recovered from the effects of his severe accident. Mr. DUELL's Sir Edward Trenchard was respectable, but there was a good deal of hoar-frost about it.

Miss ROSE EYTINGE appeared to advantage as Florence Nightingale, but the part, it must be added, is far beneath her powers. At best it is a poor one—simply serving as a feeder to the other characters. We prefer Miss EYTINGE's interpretation of it to Miss LAURA KEENE's in every respect. The lady possesses a charming voice controlled by an intellectual activity, which catches every phase of a thought without watching for it. When dealing with the good natured Asa, the besotten but kind-hearted Abel Murcott; the frantic Sir Edward; or the slightly idiotic Lord Dundreary, she gave herself frankly to the scene, sympathising with its earnestness or contributing to its humor with infinite grace and ease. The Mary Meredith, of Mrs. C. M. WALCOT, Jr., was a mild and pleasant performance, and the Mrs. Mountchessington, of Miss MARY CARR, (dressed with the usual degree of slovenliness) was moderately good. This lady should certainly know better than to raise her voice and harangue the house when that precious fragment of buncom eabout America occurs in her part.

A few new and beautiful scenes have been painted for the piece, but they are unhappily mingled with others that are old and shabby. The scenery did not act well on Saturday evening, but it will, we presume, be in good order to-night. The comedy was entirely successful, and will, we have no doubt, enjoy a new career.

THE CONJURING HERRMANN.—Without at all committing the TIMES to an indorsement of the statement that "all the crowned heads of Europe are in grief at the prolonged absence of Mr. HERRMANN," we can safely state that very many thousands of American-born men, women and children are very greatly delighted at his presence here. They will have an opportunity of looking at and being mystified by him to-night, at the Brooklyn Academy of Music. His wonderful broken English and excessively entertaining programme will be varied from those of last week at the same place. We understand that the Mayor of the city and everybody else willing to pay for a ticket are invited to attend.

NEW ORGANIST.—Plymouth Church has an old and ricketty organ, upon which for many years Mr. JOHN ZUNDEL played with wonderful success. He left some time since, and his vacant bench was temporarily supplied by Mr. WHITNEY, a young and very clever artist. Mr. MULLER, formerly of Albany and latterly of this city, has been permanently engaged by Mr. HUTCHINSON, the new chef, and yesterday the congregation were astonished at beholding some four and twenty new faces in the seats where for several years, say twenty, others had been familiar.

The choir seats of this church are directly behind the pulpit, the most conspicuous position in the church, and it has been deemed always best to put none but veterans on guard; in other words, to select seasoned organs, whose pipes are always old, though not always good. It is to be hoped that Mr. HUTCHINSON will change all this. Mr. BEECHER is a man of progress, and has induced his congregation to outlay a large amount of money for a new organ. It will soon be finished and in position. Then, through the chef de choeur, Mr. HUTCHINSON, they have secured a new organist whose forte is by no means piano, and now it is to be hoped they will drop the old guard style of singers, and secure for this most prominent and always crowded church a choir worthy of the name and of the place. The congregational singing at this church is famed throughout the country, and the frantic efforts of the old gentlemen and ladies in the choir seats to make themselves heard are very amusing. Their voices are not audible; its all dumb show. But with a choir such as could easily be picked from the congregation, singing such as is rarely heard this side of the pearly gates would extend the reputation of the church, its pastor, and its system throughout the civilized world.

ARTEMUS WARD AGAIN.—Mr. WARD has recovered his health, also his voice, and he proposes to use the latter at the Brooklyn Atheneum to-night for the amusement of the people and the benefit of his own pocket. Trusting he will have a full house and a hearty welcome, we leave him in the hands of his friends and the rest of mankind.

ANOTHER REVELATION.

How British Sympathy with Rebellion was Manipulated.

Secret History of the Southern Independence Association.

How and by Whom the Society was Formed.

Its Object to Secure British Recognition of the South.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Oct. 1.

The following interesting document has recently come into the possession of the government:

[CONFIDENTIAL.]

WICKLOW HOUSE, No. 1 CONNAUGHT-PLACE,
Nov. 7, 1863.

SIR: A strong feeling exists among the friends of the Confederate States of America, that it would be desirable to organize in London a Southern Independence Association, with the object of diffusing information as to the merits of the war in America, and of keeping before the minds of the British public the policy and justice of recognizing the independence of the Confederate States at the earliest possible moment.

As such an association must, in order to be successful, be composed of men of good political, commercial and social standing, its promoters desire, before taking further steps, to invite the gentlemen whose names are inclosed, and among whom (six) you will find your own to form a Provisional Committee.

All that is now requested of you is to agree to join that Provisional Committee conditional on not fewer than twelve of the accompanying names (six) doing the same.

As soon as twelve such conditional replies are received, a meeting of the Provisional Committee will be called to take further steps.

We have the honor to remain, Sir,
Yours faithfully,
(Signed) A. J. B. BERESFORD HOPE,
W. S. LINDSAY,
ROBERT BOURKE,
Committee.

CALL FOR A MEETING OF THE PROVISIONAL COMMITTEE.

SOUTHERN INDEPENDENCE ASSOCIATION,
ACKLOW HOUSE, No. 1 CONNAUGHT-PLACE,
LONDON, Nov. 23, 1863.

SIR: As upwards of the full requisite number of the gentlemen invited by the letter of the 7th inst., have already expressed their willingness to join the Provisional Committee on twelve acceptances coming, you are invited to a meeteig of the Provisional Committee, to be held at the above address, on Wednesday, 2d December, at 1 o'clock, to consider the organization and line of conduct of the London Southern Independence Association.

If you can attend, your presence is earnestly requested. I am, &c.,

(Signed,) A. J. B. BERESFORD HOPE.

CONSTITUTION OF THE ASSOCIATION.

[CONFIDENTIAL.]

SOUTHERN INDEPENDENCE ASSOCIATION,
ACKLOW HOUSE, CONNAUGHT-PLACE, W.,
Dec. 2, 1863.

SIR: At a meeting of the Provisional Committee for organizing the association, holden this day, the accompanying draft, constitution and circular were considered, and it was resolved to print and circulate them amongst the members of the Provisional Committee for revision and consideration.

You are earnestly requested to attend an adjourned meeting of the committee, at this address, on Saturday, the 12th inst., at 1 o'clock, and to bring the papers with you, with such corrections as may occur to you. If you are unable to attend, you are requested to have the kindness to communicate your suggestions to me previous to that date.

The committee will meet at Acklow House on the 12th inst., at 1 o'clock.

I have, &c.,
(Signed) A. J. B. BERESFORD HOPE.

SOUTHERN INDEPENDENCE ASSOCIATION.

I. An institution shall be founded in London called the Southern Independence Association, having for its object to diffuse information as to the merits of the war in America, and to keep before the mind of the British public the policy and justice of recognizing at the earliest possible moment the independence of the Confederate States.

II. It shall be governed by a committee composed of the gentlemen whose names are subjoined, with power to add to their number. The committee shall have entire control of the finances and publications of the association, and shall elect a chairman, vice chairman, and one or more honorary treasurers and secretaries out of their own number, and shall also have the power of appointing paid officers.

III. All persons desirous of becoming members of the association may be elected by the committee who shall attest their sympathy with the objects of the association. The members of the association shall pay an annual subscription of at least ——.

IV. General meetings of the association may be held at the direction of the committee, at which only questions shall be discussed of which notice has been previously given. [This was a provision to exclude the subject of slavery from discussion, according to a report of a member of the committee.]

The association may be dissolved after the recognition of the Confederate States by Great Britain, by the vote of a majority of members at a general meeting convened for that purpose.

FROM WASHINGTON.

Special Dispatches to the New-York Times.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Oct. 1.

THE PUBLIC DEBT.

The Secretary of the Treasury will issue the usual monthly statements of the public debt to-morrow. Its condition will not be materially different from the last exhibit. A slight increase in compound interest notes and a still further decrease of certificates of indebtedness will be apparent.

PERSONAL.

Secretary McCULLOCH left for Indiana last evening. During his absence Assistant Secretary CHANDLER will be acting Secretary.

THE FREEDMEN—GEN. HOWARD'S REPORT.

Maj.-Gen. HOWARD returned from his inspecting tour through Virginia last evening, after an absence of ten days. He reports favorable progress being made in the improvement of the condition of the freedmen and the settlement of the labor question between employer and employed. One of the results of Gen. HOWARD's tour has been to establish a system for the adjudication of all minor questions concerning the freedmen, such as labor disputes, contracts, minor offences, &c. A commission of three persons in each district, one appointed by the freedmen and one by the planters to act with an agent of the Freedman's Bureau will carry into effect this new system. All important matters will be referred to higher tribunals, either civil or military. It is Gen. HOWARD's intention to soon start on a more extended tour, which will embrace the entire South, and which will give him the opportunity of judging of the condition of affairs with the utmost accuracy.

SOUTHERN POSTMASTERS' ACCOUNTS.

The Postmaster-General is now engaged in examining the accounts of those who were Postmasters in the States late in rebellion previous to the war, for the purpose of instituting suits against those found to be indebted to the department.

PARDONED.

Among the pardoned yesterday, were Rev. A. T. F. GREEN, of Nashville, the head of the well-known Southern Methodist Book Concern. McFARREN, his partner, was also pardoned.

AFFAIRS IN TEXAS.

A private letter from a prominent officer at Houston, Texas, says:

"Military operations in that quarter have ceased to possess the least interest. The army is changed into an immense Sheriff's posse business chasing jay hawkers. In fact all our duties are most inglorious. Only troops enough are being left to take care of the negro, and everybody is getting tired and wishing for war, if not in Mexico, then somewhere else."

NAVAL ACADEMY EXAMINATIONS.

The September Session of the Academic Board for the examination of candidates for admission to the Naval Academy was continued, yesterday, at Annapolis. There were eighty candidates present, from time to time, since the 20th of September, the day on which the Board of Examiners held their first meeting. Several candidates are known to have been rejected. The names of the successful persons have not been made public, except in two instances, viz: MILLER, of Philadelphia, and CHARLES A. McEWEN, of Newark, N. J., who passed the examination with much credit. The last named candidate is the son of Capt. McEWEN, well known for thirty years in the East India merchant service, and now of the Sailor's Home, Snug Harbor, Staten Island. The next session of the Examining Board will commence on the 20th of July, 1866, and continue till the 1st day of August. Probably over two hundred candidates will then be in attendance, as the Southern States will be represented. The number of midshipmen allowed at the academy is two for every member and delegate of the House of Representatives, two for the District of Columbia, ten at large, ten appointed annually from the sons of officers, &c., of the army and navy, and three selected each year from boys enlisted in the navy.

Dispatches to the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sunday, Oct. 1.

THE WIRZ TRIAL.

It is understood that after the trial of Capt. WIRZ is ended and all the facts connected with the Andersonville Prison ascertained, there will be an investigation of the Salisbury and other prisons of the South in which Union prisoners were confined and maltreated.

THE COURT OF CLAIMS.

The United States Court of Claims will commence its October session to-morrow.

CHINA AND THE REBEL PIRATES.

It appears from the recently published foreign correspondence that the Chinese Government by proclamation prevented the Alabama and other rebel cruisers from entering its ports. The Board of Foreign Affairs would not permit them to do so for the reason that a treaty of peace and amnesty exists between the United States and China, and that American citizens going there to trade should not suffer injury from any one nor their ships nor goods be destroyed.

From Fortress Monroe.

FORTRESS MONROE, Friday, Sept. 29.

The masts and rigging are being taken from the sunken schooner John Aumeck, to clear the ship channel of the obstruction.

The term of enlistment of the Third Pennsylvania Heavy Artillery will expire on Oct. 15. An effort will be made to retain this regiment in the service after that date.

A fleet of seventy sail, detained by the late storm, went out to sea this morning.

Municipal Election in Nashville.

NASHVILLE, Saturday, Sept. 30.

The municipal vote for city officers, to-day, resulted in the election of Mr. BROWN, as Mayor, by a majority of 475 votes, over his next leading competitor, F. O. HUNT. The total vote of the city was 2,832. The election passed off with universal quietness.

The Magazines for October.

—Harpers' New Monthly Magazine (New-York, HARPER & BROTHER) comes before us this month, with the same general style and contents, or intellectual physiognomy, as it may be called, rendered familiar by the experience of many previous appearances; adventure, fiction and recent history, are all well represented in its pages—the first by an interesting article, "Down in the Cinnabar Mines," descriptive of the mineral and metallic workers of New Almaden, the great mercury yielding district of California. It is well illustrated, and the writer is extremely well "posted up," as the visit it records was made during the present year. The paper most important in its relation to late events and the truth of future history, is undoubtedly "Jefferson Davis," a searching examination of that gentleman's claim to ability and statesmanship, by Gen. JORDAN, late Chief of Staff to Gen. BEAUREGARD, in the Confederate service. Some of the facts it relates are, as might be expected, new to us in this part of the country; the general argument is well sustained, and the conclusions pressed home—showing with a force that is difficult to resist how much the arch rebel has been overrated in every point of view, and how easily at a distance, the acrid and petty obstinacy of a narrow mind is mistaken for heroic firmness of will and stability of purpose. "Sherman's Great March" is an abstract of Major NICHOL's book, with characteristic embellishments. WILKIE COLLINS continues what a critic will call his "Chinese puzzle." Armadale," shifting the puppets into new perplexities without eliciting one spark of human feeling. "Our Mutual Friend" contains a fanciful murder scene. DICKENS has evidently made a special study of the physiology of homicide, and is at home in delineating the youth and development of the fatal purpose while it lurks scarcely recognised in the criminal's breast. "Visit to the Isle of Puritans" is a satirical attempt to bring into startling contrast the habits and modes of thinking of the early colonial kings with our modern ways of life; the attempt is better than the execution. The other miscellaneous matter of the magazine is readable and amusing.

—The Atlantic Monthly (Boston: TICKNOR & FIELDS) finishes Mr. TROWBRIDGE's clever story. "Coupon Bonds" introduces us, through BAYARD TAYLOR's instrumentality, to a new poet with an unfortunate name, CHARLES HEAVPEGE, who hails from the prosaic regions of Canada, and has published at Montreal three volumes of dramas—"Saul," "Count Filippo" and "Jephthah's Daughter." They failed to create any sensation in an unappreciative public; but, to judge from Mr. TAYLOR's specimens, manifest—with some crudenesses—poetic ideas expressed with considerable power of versification. The curiosity of the number is unquestionably "Noël," by LONGFELLOW. It is a French "chansin à boire," or drinking song, written with true gusto, of the gay old bacchanalian worthies, who caroled so cheerily over their cups, before revolution and reform had risen to vex the Gallic soul from its anacreontic serenity. "Abraham Lincoln," by W. H. BROWNELL, is a serious subject poetically treated with a gravity and earnestness worthy of one who feels his high mission. Mr. MITCHELL's story, "Dr. Johns," continues with well-sustained interest. Messrs. PRESCOTT, EDMUND KIRKE, D. A. WASSON and Dr. HOLMES are the authors of the remaining articles, that we omit specifying, for want of space.

—Hours at Home; a Popular Monthly of Religious and Useful Literature, (New-York: CHARLES SCRIBNER & Co.,) has won favor as a new enterprise with claims of its own that do not encroach on the sphere of any of its contemporaries. The number before us closes the first volume. The articles are briefer than is customary in the other magazines, and present a corresponding variety to its readers. Miss CAROLINE BEECHER's paper, "Mrs. Lydia H. Sigourney," is the most worthy tribute yet paid to the American authoress who first among us caused the name of woman to be respected in literature; "Halle and its History," by Prof. E. C. SMITH, is an interesting sketch of one of the great sources of the religious intellectual activity of the age; "Irving at Sunnyside" narrates agreeably a visit paid to our Geoffrey Crayon by a Southern excursionist; Dr. T. D. HUNTINGDON, in his article, "Elizabeth Fry," brings out with striking effect the characteristics of the true evangelical benevolence, examples of which happily illustrate the annals of all denominations of Christians; "The author of Annie Laurie," by Col. J. G. WILSON, is a pleasing literary sketch; Miss EASTWOOD's story, "Geoffrey, the Lollard," shows increased ability in a young and promising authoress. New attractions are promised for the second volume of this magazine.

—The United States Service Magazine, (New-York: C. B. RICHARDSON,) continues its peculiar mission as the organ of the vast establishments to whom the country owes its integrity. Though they are now, in a large proportion dissolving into their original elements, all who have been mustered beneath the flag of their country will feel their hearts glow at the reminiscence, and to them whatever relates the "United Service" must remain through life a subject of intensest interest. The articles in this magazine are now referred to abroad as the most authentic exposition of the system that has proved equal to an emergency of such unequalled magnitude. They show that our military officers can write as well as fight, and are equally ready with the sword or the pen. The most important papers in the number are: "Board of Visitors at West Point," "Drill and Discipline," "The Quartermaster-General's Report," and "Great Battles in History, No. 5."

—Our Young Folks, (Boston: TICKNOR & FIELDS,) exhibits a continuance of the same attractions that have placed it at its present eminence as the organ of the rising generation. The honored name of L. MARIA CHILD will give currency to the first article, "Grandfather's Chestnut Tree," independently of its intrinsic merit. Mrs. H. B. STOWE, LUCY LARCOM, Mrs. WELLS and other ladies who know best what children like, are wisely relied upon, for the staple contents of Our Young Folks; while Capt. MAYNE READ again takes up for them his wild and wondrous tales of adventure, and J. T. TROWBRIDGE discusses to them with equal acceptance of newer and more familiar scenes.

FROM KENTUCKY.

Reception of an Ex-Rebel General—A Friendly Talk with Him—What He Thinks of Rebellion Now.

Correspondence of the New-York Times.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Friday, Sept. 22, 1865.

Detained at the Louisville Hotel, in this city, I witnessed a scene rare and unusual. Nowhere outside of New-York, your great cosmopolitan city, I doubt if a similar scene could be looked upon. I saw a "brave volunteer," a "soger boy," a Major-General, return to the bosom of his friends. He was lionized enthusiastically, and vigorously welcomed. Around him flocked, like chickens to their mother wings at twilight, well-dressed gentlemen, whose bright broad-cloth coats, sleek silk hats, "French calfs" and new kids showed that money was plentiful with them, while their smooth, soft hands betokened the ease of their lives, and proved that labor isn't everybody's calling. They had a smash-ing old time—brandy smash-es, smash-ing glassware, and just the next thing to an occasional nasal smash. Frequent brandy cocktails and straight whiskys relieved the smash-ing monotony. The "home-again" officer was greeted with numberless regular old-fashioned Methodist hand-shakes, embraces, "welcome homes" and "God bless yous." On all sides it was "how are you, General," with his reply of "how d' do, Colonel," or Major, or Captain, or familiary "Jim" or "Tom." My curiosity was aroused to see such an overflow and effervescence of good spirts, (and the bad spirit also, known as old rye,) as the little grey eyes of the "lion" twinkled in the midst of his friends. Broad and playful were his smiles when beautiful damsels and genteel matrons rushed around him and welcomed him "safely back" in tones as mellow and plaintive as moonlight music on the sea, yet as ardent as the contents of the gay glasses which jingled about them. No such vehement outburst of favor had I seen exhibited by any people toward a pair of "glittering orbs" on the shoulders of any Yankee Major-General. But this heroic "lion" was bedecked with no insignia. Yet he had in his "movement" a military air—hence the breeze he produced—while he had a commanding appearance general-ly. Whispers interrogative and replicative were on every tongue, and all eyes were turned to the patriot brave.

I looked, inquired, and was informed. Veni, vidi, vici! Would you know to whom was given so gratifying an ovation?—what gallant soldier returned so welcomed? I'll tell you: B. FRANK CHEATHAM, late Major-General in the late army of the late C. S. A.

I succumbed. I wondered whether it was the innate hospitality of the Kentuckians, the yet buoyant treason which may linger in rebel hearts of proud Southrons, or that philosophy of human nature which makes "misery love company," that explained the bonhommie of this reception. One thing was amply demonstrated, however: that FRANK CHEATHAM (as he is familiarly called) has in Louisville a host of good friends, and that to them the fact of his having led an army of rebels and traitors against the flag and government of his common country does not attach to him the slightest odium, nor depreciate him a tithe.

Ascertaining who he was, an introduction followed, and I had a long and friendly talk with him. I am satisfied that it is his genial nature which induces such extraordinary popularity with his "Johnnies." Most cordially does he receive a stranger to his acquaintance, while his caadid, earnest way of expressing his feelings and views at once relieves one of that backwardness usually attendant upon an introduction to a prominently public man.

Gen. CHEATHAM—I beg your pardon, Mr. CHEATHAM —said that it was the height of absurdity to preach treason or rebellion now. That is "played out." He said: "We have been decently and badly whipped, and I think that every sensible man of the Confederate army is ready to acknowledge it. Slavery, the sole cause of the war," said he, "is gone up, and therefore we of the South have nothing to contend for or quarrel over. The war settled the question in dispute." Very good, I thought, for the man who led into the rebel army more of the sons of Kentucky and Tennessee than "any other man." CHEATHAM was always a popular man in Tennessee, and, according to his own statement, was a "right bower" of President JOHNSON in the political games of "auld lang syne" in that State.

I was anxious to know why it was that so great a number of his friends were in Louisville, and therefore requested the reason of the General. He said that one of his brigades was from Kentucky, which accounted for the presence of many; "while," said he, "all my officers who were from East Tennessee have come here to go into business, the people in that section of the State having driven them from their old homes."

Mr. CHEATHAM had been recently to Washington, New-York, Saratoga, &c., and when in Washington he called on the President. He said he told JOHNSON that he didn't ask nor would he receive a pardon, so long as his subordinate general officers in his own command were unpardoned. "But," said he, "I told him I would rather go to work without it, and prove my sincerity and repentance."

I believe he is honest in his professions. It is not with the officers and soldiers of the rebel army that I find the living virus of disloyalty and hatred of Yankees. Some of them, of course, are full of it yet, but it is more abundant and more odiously blatant with that class of humanity's mendicants, known as "cross-road politicians" and "one-horse office-seekers." If such men as CHEATHAM are sincere in their professions, let us encourage them. J. Q. T.

Obituary.

DEATH OF DR. FRANCIS WAYLAND.

Rev. Dr. FRANCIS WAYLAND, who was more than 28 years President of Brown University, was prostrated by a paralytic stroke on Tuesday last, and died on Saturday afternoon, at 5½ o'clock, aged 69 years. The funeral will take place on Wednesday morning, at 11 o'clock, at the First Presbyterian meeting-house, in Providence.

Rev. Dr. WAYLAND was the son of an English clergyman of high standing. He was born in New-York in 1796, his parents having emigrated to this country. After graduating at Union College in 1813, he studied, medicine and was licensed as a physician. Having joined the Baptist Church, he pursued a course of theological studies at Andover, and afterwards, while a tutor at Union College, was for five years minister of the First Baptist Church in Boston; and after having been for a few months a professor at Union College, was, in December, 1826, chosen President of Brown University, succeeding Dr. MESSER. Dr. WAYLAND held his responsible post for a quarter of a century resigning in 1855. Since that time he has been occupied in literary and benevolent labors of various kinds, and has also performed some ministerial duty.

Dr. WAYLAND's career as educator and college administrator was eminently successful, the sense, solidity and strength of his mental character being peculiarly suitable to such a post. He was also widely known and influential as an author, a theologian, an ecclesiastical adviser and a wise and efficient promoter of mental and religious improvement. He was one of the earliest and most powerful agents in establishing the foreign mission system which has carried such great benefits to the heathen, and was a firm temperance and anti-slavery man.

Among his works may be mentioned "Elements of Moral Science" and "Elements of Political Economy," both extensively used as class-books; "Life of Adoniram Judson," 2 vols.; and "Intellectual Philosophy."

He published in 1842 "Thoughts on the Collegiate System of the United States," in which he advocated the plan of an optional college course in commercial or mechanic studies. Such a plan was at his instance afterwards introduced at Brown University, but it has not, we believe, met with a success as decided as Dr. WAYLAND expected.

Dr. WAYLAND was a man of large frame and imposing presence, such as well corresponded with his breadth and strength of mind. His life was one of very great and very practical usefulness. A son, Rev. FRANCIS WAYLAND, Jr., succeeds to a considerable share of his father's solid and useful talents as a minister.

The Rebellion—A Leaf from its Secret History.

A letter from F. K. ZOLLICOFFER, formerly a Member of Congress from Tennessee, and killed at Mill Spring, Ky., is published. The letter is dated Nashville, May, 1861, and is addressed to Gov. ISHAM G. HARRIS. It communicates the result of his embassy to JEFF. DAVIS, at Montgomery, "to obtain information respecting the general condition, resources, defences, &c., of the Southern States." We quote a portion of his letter:

I had free conversations with President DAVIS, Secretary WALKER and other gentlemen.

All the arms at the disposal of the Confederate States Government had been placed in the hands of the troops mustered into its service, except from nine to twelve thousand.

President DAVIS said: "We desire and expect to furnish to Tennessee, if necessary, fifty thousand arms in all." But this seems precarious. They have demands from nearly all the Southern States. They are using all possible efforts to add to their supply from abroad. The chances of procuring them are more or less hazardous.

The following extracts relate to foreign complications, and JEFF. DAVIS' hopes and plans:

Mr. HUNTER, of Virginia, told me that he had seen a letter from Washington, which induced him to believe that the British Government were resolved to open the Southern ports; that Lord LYONS and Mr. SEWARD had had a blow-up; that Lord LYONS had demanded a raising of the blockade, so far as British vessels were concerned; that Mr. SEWARD had asked for three months' delay, and that Lord LYONS had replied, "No, Sir; not three weeks." The defences on the Virginia frontier, says President DAVIS, demand their first attention. He sees, however, the propriety of throwing forces in aid of Gen. PILLOW's operations at Union City. Gen. PILLOW's proposition to occupy Columbus, Ky., he thinks premature. A supporting force at Union City at present would, in its moral effect, accomplish as much. He once proposed to Gov. MAGOFFIN to permit him to occupy Columbus, which the latter refused. He thinks Gov. MAGOFFIN, Mr. BRECKINRIDGE, and others, are merely floating with the tide of Southern feeling in Kentucky, not leading it.

That Gov. JACKSON, of Missouri, is in advance of his people, and is leading, to the utmost of his power, in defence of the South. Thinks that the true Kentuckians, headed by military leaders such as BUTLER, should retire, and rally, and organize at Union City or other points in Tennessee, and when armed and organized, should advance and occupy the military frontier of Kentucky. Thinks that the apprehension that the Northern forces will attempt to descend the Mississippi will hardly be realized—that it would be scarcely possible to succeed.

—In Pickens County, Ga., on the 27th ult., two men entered a church during service and shot two persons, killing one and mortally wounding the other. A few days subsequently, a party of seven attempted to arrest the criminals, who, reinforced by three others, offered resistance. The fight which ensued resulted in the death of all five of the desperadoes, and of two of the other party.

OPINIONS OF BUSINESS MEN.

The following extract from a communication, addressed to the Annual Convention of these colleges, held at Chicago in July last, is one of over one hundred of similar scope and spirit, from the Governors of States, Members of Congress, Generals of the Army, eminent educational men, and the great leaders in the business enterprises of the country:

From Wilson G. Hunt, Ex-Mayor of New-York.

NEW-YORK, July 7, 1865.

MESSRS. BRYANT, STRATTON & PACKARD, NEW-YORK:

GENTLEMEN: I am in receipt of your communication, inviting me to attend the Convention of the Principals and Teachers of your extended chain of Business Colleges, to be held at Chicago on the 11th of July. It would afford me great pleasure to be present on that occasion, and in person to testify to the merits and results of your system of business education. A well-considered and thoroughly-administered course of business training is, in my opinion, as essential to the sure success of the young adventurer upon the sea of business life, as is a knowledge of the principles and practice of navigation to the mariner, who would safely guide his craft across the trackless ocean. We have public schools, academies, and colleges, for mental training in the classics and occult sciences; all of which are essential and worthy of support; but in none of them can a young man obtain that practical insight into business affairs which it is your province to impart. The great feature of your institutions, and the one which should particularly commend them to public favor, is their practical character. By a well-arranged system you are enabled to give to your students the precise practice which they will have in connection with the best business houses.

I am glad to observe that you are constantly adding new attractions, such as special instruction to females in book-keeping, correspondence, telegraphing, etc. You may be sure that your efforts in this direction will be appreciated by the public. It should be the aim of every true man to extend the area of honorable employment for women; and whoever leads off in this direction, must ultimately reap the reward of his labor.

* * * * * * * * * *

Wishing you the success which your efforts have heretofore so richly merited, I am, gentlemen,
Yours, very truly,
W. G. HUNT.

PROPOSALS

ARMY SUPPLIES.
OFFICE OF ASSISTANT COMMISSARY-GENERAL OF SUBSISTENCE, No. 4 STATE-ST.,
NEW-YORK, Sept. 30, 1865.
SEALED PROPOSALS (in duplicate) will be received by the undersigned until 4 o'clock P. M. on THURSDAY, Oct. 5, for supplying, for the use of the United States Army, SUBSISTENCE STORES, to be delivered in New-York or Brooklyn, as follows, viz.:

3,000 barrels of first quality extra superfine Southern, St. Louis, or other brands of FLOUR, suitable for keeping in a warm climate. The brands and places of manufacture to be stated in the bids, and whether in round or flat-hoop barrels. The barrels to be in good shipping order, full headlined and bungs sealed.

5,000 GALLONS of the best quality of PURE VINEGAR, made only from Cider or Whisky, free from all foreign acids and injurious substances, and of a uniform strength, the Whisky Vinegar taking thirty-five grains bi-carbonate of potash to neutralize one ounce Troy, the Cider Vinegar to be of equal strength; to be put up in half barrels of 22 gallons capacity, like samples at this office, FOR IMMEDIATE DELIVERY. Each proposal must state distinctly the kind and quality of Vinegar offered, and the kind of packing.

POTATOES—Such quantities as may be required during the month of October, 1865, 60 pounds to the bushel, in good ordinary well-coopered barrels.

ONIONS—Such quantities as may be required during the month of October, 1865, 60 pounds to the bushel, in barrels as above.

A printed copy of this advertisement must be attached to each proposal, and the proposals must be specific in complying precisely with all the terms. Each bid, to have consideration, must contain the written guarantee of two responsible names, as follows:

"We, the undersigned, hereby guarantee that should all or any part of the above bid be accepted, it shall be duly fulfilled according to its true purport and conditions; also, that a written contract, with bonds to the amount of one-fourth of the value of the stores proposed to be furnished, shall be executed, if required."

The seller's name, place of business and the date of purchase, as well as the name of contents, with weight, gross and tare, and shipping marks, to be hereafter designated, must be plainly marked on every package. All other old marks must be obliterated.

All the stores will be carefully inspected before their delivery, and compared with the retained samples. Returns of weights, signed by a professional Public Weigher, must be furnished.

Payments to be made in such funds as may be furnished for the purpose.

Contractors are expected to hold their goods without expense to the United States until required for shipment.

Blanks for Proposals will be furnished at this office, which must be inclosed in an envelope addressed to the undersigned, and indorsed, "Proposals for Subsistence Stores."

SUBSISTENCE OFFICE, UNITED STATES ARMY,
No. 20 SOUTH-ST., BALTIMORE, Md., Sept. 12, 1865.
SEALED PROPOSALS, IN DUPLICATE, will be received at this office until 12 noon THURSDAY, Oct. 5, 1865, for the purchase of about ONE THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND FIFTY HEAD OF PRIME BEEF CATTLE, in lots of ten and upward.

These cattle are all in prime condition, having been on hand several months and fed daily with hay and corn, and are fully equal to any offered in market. So rare an opportunity for the purchase of extra fine beef is seldom found.

Proposals must state the number it is proposed to purchase, and the price per pound, gross.

The cattle to be weighed by the State Weigher on delivery, and the weights, as rendered by him, to be the standard by which the bills are to be settled.

Terms of sale cash in government funds. A deposit of fifty (50) per cent. to be made on notification of acceptance of bid, the balance to be paid when the cattle are delivered.

Successful bidders will be allowed ten days in which to remove their stock.

The cattle can be examined at any time from the date of this advertisement till Oct. 4, from 10 A. M. till 4 P. M. daily, at the United States Cattle Corral, adjoining the government hay scales on the Franklin road, near Baltimore.

The undersigned reserves the right to reject any or all bids if they are deemed not advantageous to the United States.

The lots will be arranged numerically from Nos. 1 to 1,750, and the awards will be made in the same order, unless a particular lot may be designated in the bid. In no case will the skipping of numbers be allowed.

Proposals must be upon blank forms furnished at this office. Telegrams will not receive attention unless the same are prepaid.

Proposals to be indorsed "Proposals for the purchase of Beef Cattle," sealed and addressed to the undersigned.
By order of Brevet Brig.-Gen. THOMAS WILSON,
C. S. U. S. A.

GOVERNMENT SALE OF WHISKY.
OFFICE DEPOT COMMISSARY,
FORT MONROE, Va., Sept. 21, 1865.
SEALED PROPOSALS (in duplicate) are invited and will be received by the undersigned at this depot until 12 O'CLOCK M. ON THE 13TH DAY OF OCTOBER, 1865, for the sale of one thousand seven hundred and fifteen (1,715) barrels of whisky, more or less, as follows, viz.:

LOT NO. 1—Consisting of ten hundred and sixty-seven (1,067) barrels of Rectified Whisky, originally inspected in April, May and June, 1864, and January, 1865, containing about forty-two thousand three hundred and forty-five (42,345) gallons. Proposals for ten (10) barrels and upward of this lot will be received.

LOT NO. 2—Consisting of four hundred and sixty (460) barrels of Pure Copper Distilled and Superior Bourbon Whisky, originally inspected in February, 1865, containing about eighteen thousand four hundred and ninety-eight (18,498) gallons.

Proposals for five (5) barrels and upward of this lot will be received.

LOT NO. 3—Consisting of one hundred and twenty (120) barrels Pure Rye Whisky, originally inspected in February, 1865, containing about four thousand eight hundred (4,800) gallons.

Proposals for three (3) barrels and upward of this lot will be received.

LOT NO. 4—Consisting of sixty-three (63) barrels pure old Rye Whisky, originally inspected in February, 1865, containing about two thousand five hundred and twenty (2,520) gallons.

Proposals for two (2) barrels and upward of this lot will be received.

LOT NO. 5.—Consisting of five (5) barrels pure Old Bourbon Whisky, originally inspected June, 1864, containing about (163) one hundred and sixty-three gallons.

Proposals for one (1) barrel and upward of this lot will be received.

The whisky was originally selected with great care, and is all pure and of prime quality. The rectified was designed for issue to troops in the field, and the Bourbon and Rye for sales to officers, and are equal if not superior to any whiskies now in the market; has all been regauged within the present month, and is in excellent order, packages being of the best quality.

Samples of the whisky can be seen and blank proposals can be obtained at the offices of the following-named officers of the Subsistence Department, viz:

Capt. THOMAS C. SULLIVAN, C. S., Richmond, Va.
Capt. E. D. BRIGHAM, C. S., Boston, Mass.
Capt. J. B. WIGGINGS, C. S., Philadelphia, Pa.

The government reserves the right to withdraw any or all of the above lots, and to reject any proposals deemed too low.

Payment to be made in United States currency within ten (10) days after notification of acceptance of bid and prior to delivery of the property.

A guaranty equal to one-half the amount proposed for must accompany the bid, signed by two (2) responsible parties.

When removing the whisky purchasers will provide their own transportation, and the government will load the vessels free of wharfage, dockage, or labor.

Bidders are invited to be present at the opening of their proposals. Brevet Brig.-Gen. Joseph Roberts, U. S. A., commanding at Fort Monroe, Va., or some other officer of rank, will be present at the opening of bids to represent absentees.
JAMES CURRY, Colonel and C. S. V.

MEDICAL.

THOUSANDS ARE TIMELY SAVED BY Dr. KENNEDY'S skillful and improved treatment.—Private diseases cured in the shortest possible time by Dr. KENNEDY & CO., No. 195 Elm-st., New-York, without the use of mercury, loss of time or change of diet. Dr. KENNEDY, from the hospitals of London, Paris and Edinburgh, is the discoverer of the only certain and reliable remedies for diseases of a private character. In 28 years' practice he has cured more cases of Secret Diseases and Wrong Treatment than all others combined. I can and will cure you in less time and at less expense than any other can or will, and those who have been robbed of their money and health, call; it will take but little money and time to restore you. If you have been unfortunate, call at once. By his special experience in this much neglected branch of medical science, he is enabled to guarantee a cure in the most complicated cases. Recent cases of Gonorrhœa or Syphilis cured in a few days, without change of diet or hindrance from business. Secondary Syphilis—the last vestige eradicated without the use of Mercury. Involuntary emissions stopped in a short time. Sufferers from Impotency, or loss of sexual power, restored to full vigor in a few weeks, permanently and speedily cured by a new treatment. Persons at a distance failing to receive prompt treatment elsewhere, may get a permanent cure effected by writing a full diagnosis of their case, addressed to Dr. KENNEDY, No. 195 Elm-st. Call, send or write.

A. M. MAURICEAU, PROFESSOR OF midwifery and operating surgeon, having over thirty years' successful practice in this city, guarantees a safe and immediate removal of all special irregularities and obstructions in females, without pain or exposure, with or without medicine. Can be consulted with the utmost confidence at his private office, No. 129 Liberty-st., New-York, or by mail.

Dr. A. M. Mauriceau is the author of "The Married Woman's Private Medical Companion," strictly intended for those whose health and circumstances forbid a too rapid increase of family; a perusal of which will convince any lady of his thorough knowledge of her complaints. Every lady who has it is secure from danger and imposition. Price $1. Sold at his office, No. 129 Liberty-st., or sent by mail, by addressing Box No. 1,224 New-York City. Sold also at No. 1 Vesey-st., New-York; in Boston, No. 13 Court-st.

MANHOOD AND THE VIGOR OF YOUTH regained in three days by Dr. POWERS' ESSENCE OF LIFE. This wonderful agent restores manhood to the most shattered constitutions, radically curing Seminal Weakness, Sexual Debility, and Impediments to Marriage generally; Nervousness, Mental and Physical Incapacity, resulting from self-abuse, &c. The time required to cure the most inveterate case is one week. Failure is impossible. This life-restoring remedy should be taken by all about to marry, as its effects are permanent. Young man, are you subject to that soul and body destroying disease, secret habits? Dr. POWERS' Invigorating Essence is a never-failing cure. Sold by WALTER POWERS, M. D. No. 195 Elm-st. New-York.

ADVICE TO MARRIED LADIES.—MADAME RESTELL, Professor of Midwifery, having over thirty years' successful practice in this city, guarantees a safe and immediate removal of all special irregularities and obstructions in females, with or without medicine, at one interview, or by mail. Can be consulted with the utmost confidence at No. 162 Chambers-st. Her infallible French Female Pills, No. 1, price $1, or No. 2, which are four degrees stronger than No. 1, and can never fail, are safe and healthy, price $5, can be sent by mail. Also sold at the druggist's, No. 152 Greenwich-st., near Liberty-st. Madame RESTELL deems it her duty to caution ladies against imitators, who not only deprive them of their means, but their health.

MEDICAL AND SURGICAL CONSULTATIONS.—Dr. R. CORBETT can be consulted with the most honorable confidence on private diseases at his conveniently-arranged suite of offices, No. 2½ Centre-st., between Chambers and Reade sts., having a private entrance at No. 6 City Hall-place. From Dr. C. being one of the oldest, and probably the only qualified physician and surgeon in this city who makes diseases of the genitourinary organs a specialty, he is thus enabled to guarantee speedy and permanent cures, or make no charge. Strictures of the urethra, seminal weakness, nervous and general debility treated on the most scientific principles. N. B.—Dr. C.'s diplomas, in his office, as member of the New-York University Medical College, and College of Surgeons, London. Office hours, 9 A. M. to 8½ P. M.

DR. COOPER, NO. 14 DUANE-ST., MAY be confidentially consulted on all diseases of a private nature. A practice of 30 years, devoted to the treatment and cure of syphilitic, mercurial and diseases of a delicate nature, enables Dr. C. to make speedy and permanent cures, no matter of how long standing the case may be. Strictures of the urethra and seminal weakness, brought on by a secret habit, effectually cured. The victims of misplaced confidence, who have been misled by quack advertisements, can call on Dr. C. with the certainty of being radically cured or no charge made.

DR. POWERS' PERIODICAL DROP are designed for both married and single ladies, and are the very best thing known for the purpose, as they will bring on the monthly sickness in case of obstruction from any cause, and after all other remedies of the kind have been tried in vain. Warranted as represented in every respect, or the price will be refunded. Beware of imitations! Purchased directly of Dr. POWERS. No. 195 Elm-st., New-York.

GENTLEMEN REQUIRING MEDICAL aid will find it to their interest to consult Dr. WEST, an old and experienced practitioner, where their health will be speedily restored. Office No. 545 Broadway, N. Y.

DR. HUNTER'S BOTANIC CORDIAL restores the vigor of youth in four days. Gives health, strength and vigor to the most shattered system. $1 a bottle. No. 3 Division-st., New-York, the only place.

LADIES, IN ALL CONFIDENTIAL CASES consult Dr. WEST, No. 545 Broadway, New-York.

MANY THOUSANDS ARE RUINED BEYOND REDEMPTION in this life by not calling on Dr. HUNTER sooner or later. He can cure the worst cases of secret disease in a shorter time than any other physician, or no pay taken. Skeptics and doubters will please call and read lists of reliable certificates of cures made within the last thirty years of almost hopeless cases, that had had the benefit of dozens of our most eminent physicians and surgeons. Dr. Hunter is in constant attendance from 8 in the morning till 9 at night, at his old office, No. 3 Division-st., New-York City, since 1834. Charges moderate, and a cure guaranteed. Separate rooms, so that the patient sees no one but the Doctor himself. His wonderful medical discovery, DR. HUNTER'S RED DROP, cures private diseases when regular treatment and all other remedies fail; cures without dieting or restriction in the habits of the patient; cures without the disgusting and sickening effects of all other remedies; cures in new cases in less than six hours; cures without the dreadful consequent effects of mercury, and possesses the peculiarly valuable property of annihilating the rank and poisonous taint that the blood is sure to absorb unless his remedy is used. This is what he claims for it, and what no other will accomplish. $2 per vial. Book, 50 pages, gratis, on nervous debility, causes of impotency, marasmus, &c.

AMERICAN INSTITUTE FAIR.

The Third Week's Operations---New Exhibitions and Inventions.

Brief Mention of Notable Machinery and Other Interesting Detail.

A Few Words About Grapes--List of Remarkable Plants.

The Billiard Match---Music, Crowds, and Other Attractions.

THE ADVERTISING NUISANCE.

The great Fair of the American Institute has now been open to the public for three weeks. In common with the opera and the theatres and all places of public resort, it has been overflowed night after night, and as the latter days of its existence draw near the attendance becomes greater. The exhibitton of to-day differs greatly from that of a fortnight since. Then, to a certain extent, confusion reigned supreme—no one could tell where the head or tail was, the machinery was not all in place, and what was ready was not in motion. Now the busy hum of the wheels is heard from eight o'clock in the morning until ten at night; all day long the immense "Waterfall" dashes its volumes of deep blue liquid from its capacious maw; the brick machine slides out and chops off its little bricks by the hundred; the horse-shoe miracle bends the bar into desired shape, and with a single click stamps the work as perfect; the planing machines, the thundering crushers, the swiftly turning lathes, the pondrous printing presses, the wierd-looking knitting apparatus, the nimble-working sewers—all are as busily engaged, without cessation, as if the life of a nation depended on their action. In the morning the majority of the visitors are men interested in machinery or gardening; in the afternoon ladies and children predominate; at night when the splendid brass band lends its additional inspiration, the rooms are crowded with all sorts and conditions of men from town and country. A more brilliantly beautiful scene it would be difficult to find, and, as the catalogue as given in the TIMES, ranges through every realm of art and science, and neglects in no way the products, pure and simple, of nature's self, it would be strange indeed if we could not all find somewhat of interest, amusement and instruction.

Prominent upon the tables in the art-room are the superb displays of made by Messrs. HOGG and BUCHANAN. Of the exquisite collection furnished by Mr. HOGG, of Japan, we have already spoken; the table upon which the plants are placed is surrounded continually by a crowd of curious and cultured people, who may well be astonished at the extent and variety of a Japanese garden. Equally attractive is the table where are exhibited the following plants in pots, by Mr. ISAAC BUCHANAN, of Seventeenth-street, New-York:

"Bilbergia thyrsoides, Caladium verschaffeltii, Caladium argenta, Caladium marmorata, Caladium atropurpurea, Begonia hydisolifolia hybrida, Begonia Rhex, Begonia parvifolia, Maranta zebrina, Croton angustifolia, Dioscorea discolor, Pinus longifolia, Dracana cœrulea, Dracana forea, Dracana terminalis, Dracana nobilis, Dracana augustifolia, Dracana Brasiliense, Jatropha multifida, Tradescantia discolor, Campylobotrys argrenurens, Bilbergia zebrinia, Cereus senilis, Mamillaria argrostignia, Mamillaria wildio, Cereus stellaris, Stapyllice grandiflora, Chamerops pumila, Phenix dactylifera "date," Zamia pungeus, Sabal addisonie, Cocos chilensis, Corypha palmata, Sabal glauca, Bounapartia gracilis, Porcroya gigantea, Piperoma reticulata, Philodendron ponturosum, Clused rosea, Begonia saudersonii, Begonia Sambo, Begonia richardsonia, Veronica speciosa, Double nasturtium, Prya augustifocia, Bencencettia tuberculata, Begonia zebrina, Marenta sp.; also, Orchids, Laeli perennis, Epidendrum cochleatum, Chrysis bractiseus, Oncidium roseum, Phyladota imbracata, Epidendrum nutans, Epidendrum proliferum, Vanda tricolor, Miltonia clowsii, Calanthe sp. Japan; also, six ornamental leaf plants, Croton pictum stegans, Maranta zebrina, Caladium balenii, Ananas sativa striata, Dracena sieboldii, Aspedastra variegata.

It is not often that gentlemen are willing to risk such collections as these among a crowd of miscellaneous visitors, and the exceptions to the rule deserve public recognition.

The cultivation of

has become an American specialty. Already we find the home wine trade rivalling the importations from elder countries, and there are not wanting enthusiasts who hope, ere half a century has passed, to virtually supersede all the foreign by our domestic supply. Among the most prominent growers and exhibitors is Dr. GRANT, well known throughout the country as an enthusiastic devotee in this regard. He has at the fair many of his choicest specimens, to which the Greeley Prize was last year awarded. Connoisseurs have quarrelled for years, we know, as to the relative merits of the Delaware, Isabella, Iona, and perhaps the Diana varieties. Amateurs have not been so greatly embarrassed, and common people would be glad at any time to accept a good dish of either. The Delaware as exhibited, and as generally found, is hardy, early, juicy and spicy, and productive to a remarkable degree. It is, perhaps, a little too small for table show, but for table use it is eminently sound and delicate. Some bunches weigh from a half to three-quarters of a pound, and it is claimed that care will bring them to a better weight even than this. The Iona is an improvement on the Delaware in size, and, its admirers claim, in taste. The Iona has more meat and spirit than the Delaware, but it is not more rich. It is more spicy, but we should doubt its vinous excellence. The bunch and berry of the Iona are very much larger than those of the Delaware, and a more beautiful sight than a large pendant bunch we cannot imagine. The grape is perfectly transparent, the seeds being easily seen before the bloom has set in. As a show grape for the table, the Iona is undeniably the grape. The bunches are large, compact and comely, the grapes are beautifully formed, beautifully colored, rich, spicy, luscious in the mouth, but for manufacturing purposes the Delaware is the better of the two. How entirely content should a grape-grower be who has both kinds, the one for sale to the bon vivant in the heat of late September, the other for pressure and palatical enjoyment in the bitter, keen of December and January. The varieties exhibited are too numerous for detailed mention; they attract great attention from farmers, gardeners and fancy fruit-growers, and form a most attractive feature of the Fair.

Among the many remarkable machines yet unnoticed in the TIMES is one called the "Variety Moulding Machine," whose capacity for doing almost everything that can be done with sharp steel and wood one would be inclined to doubt, unless he had, as any one can have, the evidences of his senses. The machine is made at the Globe Iron Works in this city, embraces nine patents, and is owned by a company which takes its name from the work of the invention. It would seem to be complete for all kinds of irregular and straight work in wood, whether hard or soft, and adapted peculiarly to cutting, planing and moulding every variety of form. By the simplest and easiest mechanism are made circular head windows, outside and inside jambs, all kinds of beading, brackets, fluted columns, lattice-work, paneling, mouldings for centre-tables, what-nots, glass and picture frames, machinery patterns, and all manner of carriage-shop work.

JAMES STEWART's son exhibits a very simple engine turning-lathe, with back-gear and slide-rest, for foot or steam power. The advantage of this lathe would seem to be that the slide-rest can be taken off, and the hand-rest put on, which, of course, makes it a hand-lathe.

The Gillespie Governor Manufacturing Company of Boston exhibit an improved hydraulic governor for all kinds of water-wheels, and more especially for turbines and wheels driven by pressure, reaction, or concussion of water. It is claimed that upon all wheels of this class this governor will produce an evenness of speed not attainable even by a steam engine. It is said that the great superiority of this governor is, that the gate is moved quick and strong—the gates of the largest wheels often being moved as quickly as the valves of an engine, while the governor is extremely sensitive to the slightest variation of labor.

Several of our wealthiest and best-known capitalists have formed a company for the manufacture and sale of hay and cotton presses, Mr. HOMER RAMSDEL being President. The press is exhibited at the Fair, and in view of the reopening of certain long closed fields of labor attracts, as it merits, great attention. The press is a vertical parallel cross lever of enormous power, the working of which has proved it capable of pressing hay, cotton, hemp, wool, rags, and hops compactly, expeditiously, and economically. The ordinary working of this machine will press in two minutes' time a bale of hay of 500 pounds, or of cotton of 600 pounds, being 30 pounds to the cubic foot of hay, and 33 pounds to the cubic foot of cotton, as the space occupied by the bale in the box, when made, is about 15½ cubic feet. Four men and one horse have baled 12 tuns of hay per diem.

are now brought to a perfection of shape and usefulness. Like everything else they have had their day of darkness, of struggle, of progress and now of success. Without doubt men have occasionally lost by accident a leg or two since the earliest creation, but it was not until the year 1696 that a learned Dutchman named VERDNIER was first inspired to provide a substitute for the useless member. His intentions we believe were good, better indeed than his inventions. Since then we have had wooden legs and cork legs of all sorts and kinds, but it was left for America to develope limbs absolutely serviceable and entirely acceptable. Singularly, too, the greatest advancement in this branch of art has been made during the past four years, the very time when so many of our country's gallant sons felt the need of this kind of assistance. Dr. PALMER's name will go down to remotest time as a practical philanthropist, and his efforts in this line of surgico-mechanism are deserving of all praise. On exhibition at this fair we find a case of WESTON's Metallic Artificial legs. They are the first and perhaps the only leg which have the rubber ankle-joint, by which, should the wearer step on an uneven surface, he is furnished all the advantages of a natural joint. The construction is admirably simple, and can be so readily appreciated by any intelligent mechanician that its repair, if broken or marred in any way, is possible without its being sent to the original maker. It cannot be affected by the weather, heat does not crack it, nor dampness make it swell. Combining lightness, strength, durability, simplicity and cheapness, it well deserves assistance and introduction by the public journals, and the ready recognition of medical men. The thanks of many a poor soldier are already rendered the manufacturers.

J. B. BARTLETT exhibits an Automatic Machine for sawing, planing and jointing staves, which is capable of making 10,000 staves a day, complete and ready for use. Its operation is very simple, and as a curiosity it attracts very many who are in no way interested in its mere object. He also exhibits a trussing machine which hoops 200 barrels an hour, and a crozing machine which chimes barrels of any size at the rate of 200 an hour. For Heaven's sake what will become of the coopers if this sort of thing goes much further?

A very choice and interesting collection of machinery is made by G. & C. PLACE, including laths, planers, drills, shears, punches, presses, circular-saws, patent sifting machines, ball-valve pumps, and portable scales.

THOMAS PROSSER & SONS, a well-known New-York house, exhibit boiler tubes, drills, rimer-conntersinks, expanders, steel, wire and whalebone tube brushes, and artesian, oil and salt well tubing.

WEBSTER & Co. exhibit what they call an "ordinary wrench." It seems to us a very extraordinary wrench for cutting off bolts, round rods, steam, gas, brass or led pipe. Wherever water and gas are used, this wrench would be of service. Its power is simply tremendous, and its action quick.

In years gone by our

have done their full share in filling up the rooms of the Institute Fair, competing with each other in elegance and finish, beauty of style and ease of spring. This year the fair is nearly deserted by them. In a room which leads off from the gallery, Mr. B. W. TILTON, of this city, exhibits two most tempting vehicles, which, perhaps, it is as well should be without competition; they certainly would be difficult to eclipse in grace or finish.

Its a question in the minds of many whether the American Institute consults its own dignity, or even interest, in permitting so very many glaring patent advertisements in their fair. It can benefit no one to know that at a certain dressmaker's establishment, jackets and dresses of certain patterns can be procured; no one is interested in reading a long screed about a certain school or mercantile college; nor is there any good end attained by the exhibition and sale of perfumery and a dozen other articles, whose manufacture require neither taste, skill nor American industry. In fact some of those classed under the first two heads are glaring and ridiculous advertisements and nothing else.

In speaking of the cabinet organs last week we unintentionally did CARHART, NEEDHAM & Co. an injustice by locating them in Philadelphia. The house is a New-York house. In addition to the organs alluded to in our former articles, Mr. PELTON has two Peloubet organs on exhibition. We have not yet heard them played upon. We learn that during this week Messrs. MASON & MILLS will give a concert at the request of the exhibitors in the organ department. We have already heard these gentlemen at the rooms, and Mr. KING, another of our best known and most highly respected organists has played with great satisfaction to those who were privilged to hear him.

Is there no way in which the managers can spare the visitors the annoyances which little boys, little girls, fashionably-attired damsels and long-haired young men daily inflict by their poundings on the five-and-twenty pianos all in a row? Sensitive people avoid the art-room. Newspaper people, who can, and for that matter do, stand everything, are obliged to protest; in fact no one but the pounders and a few old chaps, whose eagerness about the pears and grapes make them forget their ears, are willing to remain within a rod of the place, and we predict a total neglect of the place unless some prompt and efficient measures are taken to stop the nuisance.

J. E. PALMER exhibits a circular loom for weaving.

H. H. EMORY exhibits a cotton gin and condenser.

CHAS. HARDY exhibits a grinding-frame and machine for card-grinding.

J. T. PLOSS exhibits a powerful quartz-crusher.

TALCOT & UNDERHILL exhibit a water-wheel. E. G. TAYLOR exhibits a cotton-press. J. A. ROBINSON exhibits an Ericsson engine.

The popular interest taken in the exhibition is an encouragement to the directors of the Institute deserved and appreciated, and we doubt not both the organization and the public will continue to derive benefit from the exertions and devotion of these public-spirited citizens. To-morrow afternoon and evening a billiard match will be played at the fair, and a fine band of music will as usual be in attendance.

THE FENIAN MOVEMENT.

Shipment of $1,000,000 in Irish Bonds—What the English Government will do—A New Phase of Affairs, &c., &c.

The steamers City of Boston and Erin, which sailed from this port on Saturday are said to have taken out $1,000,000 in bonds for the use of the embryotic Irish Republic. It is currently reported that as soon as these bonds reach Ireland matters will assume a more definite form, and a proclamation also printed here will be spread broadcast throughout the land, and so well guarded is every avenue that there is no possibility of the British Government obtaining the documents or of interfering with the plan of distribution. It is claimed that the bonds have nearly all been subscribed for, and many of them by people whom the Government least suspect.

On the other hand the British Government claim to have knowledge of the shipment of the bonds and have an agent on board of the steamers in question who will at the proper time seize them and turn them over to the home government. In all probability both these steamers will be thoroughly searched before going into Queenstown, or at least before any passengers or freight are allowed to land. War vessels are by this time stationed at Queenstown for this express purpose. The weather horizon begins to look dusty, and the British government are preparing to meet the storm which has been gathering for the past nine years.

The issuing of these bonds and their shipment is a fact well authenticated, and is one of the straws which shows the direction of the wind.

FEMALE EMIGRATION.

Visit to the Steamer Continental—Progress of the Scheme—The Vessel to Sail this Week, &c., &c.

Yesterday our reporter visited the steamer Continental, and saw MR. A. S. MERCER, the agent of Washington Territory and the superintendent of this novel and new emmigration scheme. He had just returned from Washington with full power to proceed without delay to get the vessel off, and if possible, she will sail on Saturday of this week.

The Continental is a fine screw steamer, of 1,623 tons measurement, built in Philadelphia, by JOHN LYNN, and is of the following dimensions: Length, 244 feet; beam, 38 feet; depth of hold, 25 feet. She has three decks, well lighted and ventilated. Her machinery is from MERRICK & SONS, of Philadelphia, and the cylinder is 40 inches in diameter, with 50 inches stroke of piston.

She is commanded by Capt. SUMNER, an accomplished officer and gentleman, one who is well calculated to fill the responsible situation in which he is to be placed. The vessel herself is large, roomy, well ventilated, and has carried on one trip nearly 1,500 troops. She is to be fitted up with commodious berths and every accommodation for the comfort and safety of her fair and valuable freight. About seventy young men (happy mortals) will go out in this vessel for the purpose of aiding, by their stout hearts and strong arms, the young ladies in event of accident.

About seven hundred young ladies averaging 22 years of age, have already engaged passage, and among this large number there are a number of elderly ladies who have two or three daughters on the list.

There are a large number of soldiers' widows who by the war have lost their lawful protectors, young ladies who have no charms or chance at home, or who through a love of romance and travel, have resolved to seek the new Eldorado of promise. The inducements are certainly great for these young ladies; many of whom ere spring will reign in and rule over the household of men who they know not to-day. Expectant hearts, beaming eyes, and out-stretched arms await them at the end of their journey of twenty thousand miles. The will come fresh, ruddy and browned after their life upon the ocean. Already scores have arrived in the city and anxiously await the day of sailing, and look forward to their arrival in their future home with more than ordinary interest.

What a load of precious freight will the Continental carry. Just think of what a sight between decks—seven hundred, and perhaps more, females ranging in years from 18 to 50. We are thankful, young and handsome as they call us, not to be of this party. Just think of the questions that will be asked. Only think of the band-boxes, acres of crinoline, miles of bonnet ribbons, cases of calico, pieces of lace, feet of shoes, piles of trunks; of the Marys, the Janes, the Claras, Maggies, Essies, Julies, sweet little ones, ugly old ones, passably good ones, a quaint, queer, qurious quotation from the human market.

Three moths, one quarter of a year, these gentle ones are to be together. Won't they know all about each other before that time; recount all their love stories, tell all their afflictions, exhibit all their carte-de-visites, rings and other mementoes of affection, and, perhaps, of blighted love. Wonder how he will look whom they have not, but expect to see and then wed. Won't there be some tall tea-parties there? and at sunset, far out upon the ocean, when grouped around the decks, they sing old and familiar songs, whose notes will be wafted far over the rippling waters. Won't that be nice? And then, when the storm howls around their bark, how they will tremble and wish they had never started.

This voyage will be one of strange and novel interest, and it is to be hoped that some of the voyagers will give us a pen photograph, in book form, of the trip from New-York to the North Pacific coast. Well written, it would be the most interesting sea voyage ever given to the public.

The Continental will touch en route at Rio de Janeiro, Valparaiso, Panama, Acapulco, San Francisco, and then proceed to Puget Sound, passing through the Straits of Magellan, where, for the first time in their lives, they will behold some of the grandest scenery on the face of the globe.

Mr. MERCER will devise all manner of amusement and instruction for the ladies on the outward trip. Lectures will be given twice a week, and every care taken to make the voyage pleasant in its every detail.

This is the grandest moral and beneficial female excursion ever inaugurated, and will no doubt be very beneficial in its results. Mr. MERCER seems like a whole-souled, honest man, and has no other object in view than the good of the community of which he is an honored member. And if life is spared, he can look back at three score and ten, and in almost every face of the youth the results of his enterprise in 1864–5. He will be the godfather of Washington Territory.

THE POLICE COURTS.

The Tombs—Before Justice Dowling.

A HOMICIDAL AFFRAY

Occurred between 12 and 1 o'clock yesterday morning, in AMELIA SCHUTGEN's dance-house, in the lower part of Cherry-street, and FRANCIS LAMARR, of the steamer Isla de Cuba, was stabbed in one hand and arm and in the back, the latter wound penetrating his liver. MICHAEL GRIFFITH was also stabbed, and several others are supposed to have been severely wounded by the pistols, poniards, bludgeons, decanters, and glasses that were used. Information having been given the police, Officers DORSEY and FITZGERALD went to the den and apprehended LAMARR, GRIFFITH and JOHN NICHOLAS, and took them to the Oak-street Police-station, where Dr. HUDSON, of No. 1 Madison-street, attended them. LAMARR, who does not appear to have participated in the fight, was taken aboard the Isla de Cuba, lying in the East River, and GRIFFITH and NICHOLS, having been held until morning in the station-house, were taken to the Tombs and committed for examination. The fight is said to have been commenced by a gang of Italians.

THE BROADWAY RAILROAD PICKPOCKETS

Go to their work prepared for "business." On Saturday evening, Mr. JAMES T. WALKER, of the Broadway Hotel, observed that two youngsters who were riding on the front platform of a Broadway Railroad car were crowding everybody on the platform, and when, presently, one of them rudely jostled him and leaped from the vehicle, Mr. WALKER understood the movement and gave chase, his watch having been stolen. The flight and pursuit were spirited until one of the thieves turned upon and knocked down, with a loaded cane, Mr. JOHN MOONEY, of No. 87 West Twenty-seventh-street, a gentleman who had joined in the chase, and Mr. WALKER, despairing of capturing the fugitives, drew his revolver and threatened to shoot them if they would not quietly surrender, and then the elder thief—JOHN BROWN by name—give himself up and was turned over to Policeman LINDEN, of the Twenty-ninth Precinct. The other fellow kept on, and, turning a corner, was soon out of sight. Subsequently, at Jefferson Market Police Court, Mr. WALKER recognized BROWN's confederate sitting among the spectators, anxiously watching the course of proceedings, and he also was arrested. He rendered the name of THOMAS BELL. The prisoners, in default of $2,000 bail each, were committed for trial.

ROBERIES.

Late on Saturday night MICHAEL TREHAN, of No. 132 Leonard-street, garroted ISADORE MEYERS, of No. 103 Hester-street, and robbed him of a silver watch, while he was passing through Suffolk-street. TREHAN was arrested by Policeman BUHLER, and committed in default of $2,000 bail.....MICHAEL FOX knocked down and attempted to rob, in Corlears-street, Mr. WALTER TOLSEN, of No. 380 Broome-street; but before he could get Mr. TOLSEN's wallet Policeman GIFFORD, of the Thirteenth Ward, turned a corner and arrested him. He was committed in default of $1,000 bail.

Murder in Yorkville.

CARDS AND THE KNIFE IN A PORTER-HOUSE.

Between 12 and 1 o'clock, yesterday morning, a party of Yorkville boys, who had been drinking and playing cards in MICHAEL MORAND's liquor-store, in Fourth-avenue, near Ninetieth-street, disputed over their game, and at length fought with knives and pistols, and DANIEL DANAHEA, one of their number, was stabbed in the right temple. The blade of the dirk with which he was stabbed passing through the skull and penetrating the brain. He lived an hour and a half. While the fight was at its height the Twenty-third Precinct Police were summoned, and Officers O'DONNELL, BUCKLEY, NOLAN and FOY, responded and took the entire party to the Yorkville Police-station, where they rendered their names as Daniel Wall, Jeremiah O'Keefe, James Wall, Matthew Garretty, John Duffy, John Wolff, Morris Sheehan, Prtrick McNamara, Robert Porter, Thomas Matthews, and Michael Morand. Coroner COLLIN impanneled a jury yesterday afternoon, and after carefully examining the witnesses, the jury found a verdict under which the Coroner held DANIEL WALL as principal, JEREMIAH O'KEEFE as accessory, and the following named as witnesses: JAMES WALL, MATTHEW GARRETTY, JOHN DUFFY, JOHN WOLFF, MORRIS SHEEHAN, and PATRICK MCNAMARA. The principal and accessory were committed to the Tombs, and the witnesses were sent to the House of Detention. It appearing that ROBERT PORTER, THOMAS MATTHEWS, and MICHAEL MORAND were not engaged in the fight, they were released from restraint. DANAHEA was a native of Ireland, 35 years of age, and dwelt in Ninetieth street, between Fourth and Fifth avenues.

Brig.-Gen. T. S. Pitcher, U. S. A.; Hon. E. Jameson, Maine; Judge R. B. Knapp, Oregon, and Col. N. C. Sawyer, Vermont, are at the Metropolitan Hotel.

Gen. A. Heintzelman, U. S. A.; Rev. J. T. Pollock, Ohio; J. F. Barnard and wife, Chicago; Frank Dodge and wife, Georgetown, D. C.; H. J. Hastings and Wm. Strong, Esq., Albany, are at the Astor House.

GENERAL CITY NEWS.

BRYANT STRATTON & CO.'S BUSINESS COLLEGE.—The regular evening sessions of Messrs. BRYANT, STRATTON & Co.'s business and commercial college will commence this evening. It is the design of the principals to render this feature of the institution at once attractive and efficient. The college is now located in the Mortimer Building, corner of Twenty-second-street and Fifth-avenue, where five large apartments are devoted to the instruction of some five hundred pupils. At a comparatively trifling expense, the youth who intends to devote himself to a business career, may here obtain a thorough practical knowledge of book-keeping, commercial law, business correspondence, &c., taking part in actual transactions until he becomes thoroughly familiarized therewith. A system of bank and joint stock accounts is also taught, together with the art of telegraphing. Messrs. BRYANT & STRATTON have now thirty-three branch colleges in operation, extending from this city to distant Missouri and Minnesota.

THE SOLDIER'S EMPTY SLEEVE.—A lecture will be delivered by Miss SUSANNAH EVANS at the Cooper Institute, on Monday evening next, the 9th inst., for the benefit of ALFRED A. STRATTON, a meritorious young soldier, who lost both his arms at the battle of Fort Stedman, June 18, 1864, in front of Petersburgh, Va. The subject of Miss EVANS' lecture will be "The Soldier's Empty Sleeve," and the fair lecturer comes to us indorsed by the press of the West, where she has appeared in behalf of the soldiers and their widows and orphans.

DROWNED IN HARLEM RIVER.—Yesterday morning Mr. BENJAMIN GRIFFITH, of One Hundred and Twenty-ninth-street, between Fourth and Fifth-avenues, lost his footing while attempting to drown a dog, and, falling into the Harlem River, was drowned. His body was recovered, and an inquest was held yesterday afternoon by Coroner COLLIN.

BROOKLYN NEWS.

HIGHWAY ROBBERY.—On Saturday evening last, a lad named ANTHONY HANEY, aged fourteen years, was attacked and robbed in Hudson-avenue. HANEY is employed as a clerk in a tinware store in Myrtle-avenue, near Carll-street. He was on his way to his home, No. 71 Hudson-avenue. All the money he had with him, consisting of $9 50, was taken. A youth named ED. CLARK, aged fifteen years, was arrested and identified as one of the assailants. He was held for a hearing.

DISCHARGES IN THE NAVY YARD.—A number of discharges were made in the Navy Yard on Saturday. Sixty-six men were discharged from the sail-loft; seventy-seven from the laborer's department, and nine from the machine shop.

BROOKLYN CITY MORTALITY.—The total number of deaths in this city last week was 139, of which 49 were under one year of age; natives of the United States 113, Ireland 15, other countries 11.

KINGS COUNTY POLITICS.—The Democrats, Regulars and Nationals, met on Saturday last and nominated Mr. WILLIAM BURTIS, for the Assembly of the Third District, by acclamation.

Williamsburgh.

COUNTERFEIT UNITED STATES CURRENCY.—Constable STILLWAGEN, of Queens County, yesterday arrested two men named PATRICK GUVEN and THOMAS MCGLINN, charged with passing counterfeit United States currency of the denomination of fifty cents. The prisoners were taken to the Forty-seventh Precinct Station-house and searched, when $54 of the bogus currency was found upon the person of GUVEN. The prisoners were locked up.

HOUSE ROBBERY.—The residence of JOHN F. NIXON, in Huron-street, between Franklin and Union-avenues, Greenpoint, was entered through the pantry window, and robbed of $75 in money and some household articles. The thieves must have remained in the house a considerable time, as they helped themselves to pies and other eatables in the pantry, and very considerately picked up the remnants of their feast and threw them behind an adjoining fence.

ANNUAL FAIR OF THE QUEENS COUNTY AGRICULTURAL SOCIETY.—The twenty-fourth annual exhibition of the Queens County Agricultural Society will take place at the Fashion Race Course, on Wednesday and Thursday next. The Secretary of the Society, Mr. JOHN HAROLD, and the Committee of Arrangements, will be on the ground to-morrow to receive entries and make disposition of the articles for exhibition.

An Unpublished Letter from President Lincoln.

BATES HOUSE, Ind., Saturday, Sept. 23, 1865.

MY DEAR SIR: The inclosed may interest and be deemed worthy of preservation. So many personal friends having heard of, became curious of seeing and perusing Mr. LINCOLN's letter, that it was in danger of mutilation, and I caused it to be "printed for private distribution." Among them, certain conductors of the press—politically antagonistic—obtaining a sight of that letter, copied and animadverted thereupon. I expressed to Mr. LINCOLN my vexation, accompanied with an explanation; and soon thereafter received another letter, whereof you will find a copy—the first I have yet made of it.

As I wrote you yesterday, I expect to stop certainly on Tuesday next at the Tremont House, Chicago.

Your friend and servant,
JAS. H. HACKETT.

CHAS. A. DANA, Esq.

[Private.]

EXECUTIVE MANSION, WASHINGTON, Nov. 2, 1863.

James H. Hackett:

MY DEAR SIR: Yours of Oct. 22 is received, as also was, in due course, that of Oct. 3. I look forward with pleasure to the fulfillment of the promise made in the former to visit Washington the following Winter, and to "call."

Give yourself no uneasiness on the subject mentioned in that of the 22d.

My note to you I certainly did not expect to see in print; yet I have not been much shocked by the newspaper comments upon it. Those comments constitute a fair specimen of what has accurred me through life. I have endured a great deal of ridicule without much malice; and have received a great deal of kindness, not quite free from ridicule, I am used to it.

Yours truly, A. LINCOLN.

As a companion to the above, we give the previous letter from President LINCOLN to Mr. HACKETT:

EXECUTIVE MANSION,
WASHINGTON, Aug. 17, 1863.

MY DEAR SIR: Months ago I should have acknowledged the receipt of your book, and accompanying kind note, and I now have to beg your pardon for not having done so.

For one of my age I have seen very little of the drama. The first presentation of Falstaff I ever saw was yours here last Winter or Spring, Perhaps the best compliment I can pay is, to say, as I truly can, I am very anxious to see it again. Some of SHAKESPEARE's plays I have never read, while others I have gone over perhaps as often as any other unprofessional reader. Among the latter are "Lear," "Richard III," "Henry VIII," "Hamlet," and especially "Macbeth." I think none equals "Macbeth." It is wonderful. Unlike you gentlemen of the profession, I think the soliloquy in "Hamlet" commencing "O my offence is rank," surpasses that commencing "To be or not to be." But pardon this small attempt at criticism. I should like to hear you pronounce the opening speech of Richard III.

Will you soon visit Washington again? If you do, please call and let me make your personal acquaintance. Yours truly, A. LINCOLN.

JAMES H. HACKETT, Esq.

The Indian Council.

TEXT OF THE TREATY.

The following is the text of the treaty made at the Indian Council at Fort Smith with the tribes of Cherokees, Creeks, Choctaws, Chickasaws, Osages, Seminoles, Senecas, Shawnees and Quapaws:

Whereas, The aforesaid nations and tribes, or bands of Indians, or portions thereof, were induced by the machinations of the emissaries of the so-called Confederate States, to throw off their allegiance to the Government of the United States, and to enter into treaty stipulations with said so-called Confederate States, whereby they have made themselves liable to a forfeiture of all rights of every kind, character and description, which had been promised and guaranteed to them by the United States; and whereas, the Government of the United States has maintained its supremacy and authority within its limits; and whereas, it is the desire of the government to act with magnanimity with all parties deserving its clemency, and to reëstablish order and legitimate authority among the Indian tribes; and, whereas, the undersigned representatives or parties connected with said nations and tribes of Indians have become satisfied that it is for the general good of the people to reunite with and be restored to the relations which formerly existed between them and the United States, and as indicative of our personal feelings in the premises, and of our several nations and tribes, so far as we are authorized and empowered to speak for them; and, whereas, questions have arisen as to the status of the nations, tribes and hands that have made treaties with the enemies of the United States, which are now being discussed, and our relations settled by treaty with the United States Commissioners, now at Fort Smith for that purpose:

The undersigned do hereby acknowledge themselves to be under the protection of the United States of America, and covenant and agree that hereafter they will in all things recognize the Government of the United States, as exercising exclusive jurisdiction over them, and will not enter into any alliance or conventional arrangement with any State, nation, power or sovereign whatsoever; that any treaty of alliance for cession of land or any act heretofore done by them or any of their people, by which they renounce their allegiance to the United States, is hereby revoked, cancelled and repudiated.

In consideration of the foregoing stipulations made by the members of the respective nations and tribes of Indians present, the United States, through its commissioners, promises that it will reëstablish peace and friendship with all the nations and tribes of Indians within the limits of the so-called Indian country; that it will afford ample protection for the security of the persons and property of the respective nations or tribes, and declares its willingness to enter into treaties to arrange and settle all questions relating to and growing out of former treaties with said nations, as affected by any treaty made by said nations with the so-called Confederate States, at this council now convened for that purpose, or at such time in the future as may be appointed.

The English Capitalists at Cleveland.

SPEECH BY SIR MORTON PETO.

At the banquet given by the Clevelanders to the English capitalists, Sir MORTON PETO said:

"He had some things to say in regard to railway management in this country, and he wished those gentlemen present to understand that he meant no offence by what he was about to say. There had been great difficulty encountered in railway management in England, and he wanted to avoid those difficulties here. In England the roads had looked suspiciously on each other, and had considered every neighbor to be an enemy. Instead of working harmoniously together, they had thwarted each other in every possible manner, without regard to their own interests. They had built unprofitable branches in order to divert each other's traffic, and made tariffs, not with the object of remunerative returns, but to obstruct and injure the business of their competitors. These things could not be continued long in a small country like England without coming to a head. Accordingly, a short time since, the lines came to an agreement by which the different lines agreed to a system for equalizing the rates of traffic. A railway clearing-house was also established, to which all ticket accounts were reported, the proper division made, and the amounts paid over. The result of this arrangement was an increased income to the roads, and a more satisfactory service to the public. The London and Northwestern, for instance, was now receiving equal to $120,000 per week more than before those arrangements had been entered into, whilst the public using the road were much better accommodated. Besides a proper attention to their self-interest and mutual accommodation, railroad companies owe a duty to the public in giving them all possible facilities. It is a fact that when railroads work together for mutual benefit, the advantage is to the public; whilst on the other hand, it is a true axiom that railroads cannot do what is necessary to accommodate the public without at the same time benefiting themselves. The benefits are reciprocal. During our recent tour we have visited the leading business points in the West, and have found great and growing cities; busy hives of industry, whose size and importance would be remarkable, even if the fact of their having sprung so recently into existence did not make that very existence a marvel. At every point in the West they said they had only one want, and that was a greater outlet to the East. They wanted more extended facilities for getting their products to market. My friend Mr. GALE, of the Erie Railway, heard those complaints, and can recognize their force. When we reach New-York we intend to represent this matter to the gentleman of the Erie Railway, and we feel satisfied that the Erie Railway will respond to the call. It seems that you accept the fact of our large investments in this country as proofs that we have had confidence in you. It is true that we had confidence, and are perfectly satisfied with the result of that confidence. Those gentlemen who had not like confidence with us, and who put their money in Confederate bonds, have no occasion to rejoice with us. [Great laughter and cheering.] In going back to England and reporting the result of our visit, we shall take back a pleasant tale. We have everywhere been greeted with professions of friendship, which we heartily believe to be sincere. If the two countries would remain friendly, we must resolve to respect each other's independence. After our journeyings west and east, we can say there is only one thing that we have not seen in this country which can be seen in every other country—we have not seen a single man asking alms. In other countries, no matter where, we could not have traveled a day without being appealed to on all sides by beggars; not a port that we could enter without being met on landing with appeals for alms. Here we can say that we have not seen a beggar, or a person whose appearance indicated want. This is a great fact, and one of which you may well be proud. For this, if nothing else, you could afford to be proud of your country. We are proud of our country. We are proud of our government, but it is a growth of ages. Your country is but young. Yet it has shown a stability that has filled the world with wonder. It has passed through a terrible trial, and has come out triumphantly through the ordeal; yet, after the termination of a long and devastating war, there is not a beggar to be seen in your land. No prouder record could be made of any nation."

Gen. Lee at Washington College.

The Lexington (Va.) Gazette thus announces the arrival of Gen. ROBERT E. LEE at that town, preparatory to taking charge of Washington College:

"On Monday last, (18th inst.,) Gen. LEE made his appearance on our streets. He had traveled across the country from Cumberland County, a hundred miles or more, on horseback, arriving a day sooner than he was expected, and taking our citizens entirely on surprise—not in the mode, but in the time of his coming; for his style of locomotion was already known, and is perfectly in accordance with his quiet, unostentatious way of doing things. The General is, for the present, the guest of our worthy and well-known townsman, Col. S. McD. REID.

The Board of Trustees of the college meet to-day to take steps for filling the chair of 'Mental and Moral Philosophy,' now vacant, and for the transaction of other important business."

THE CHARLESTON BELLS.—We are informed that of the bells of Charleston which were brought to this place, but three remain now on the spot where they have been so long exposed to the weather, and that all of these three are broken. One of them is the bell of St. Paul's Church; the other two remaining are those of St. Michael. These bells were originally eight in number. They were examined soon after the raid of SHERMAN, and four of them, all of St. Michael's, were sound and perfectly uninjured. All these have disappeared, but in what direction, how, why, and by whose hands, is utterly unknown. They are supposed to have been stolen, though as only the sound bells have been taken away the hope is entertained that these were saved and stored carefully by Major NIERNSEE. That gentleman is now absent from the city, and we must wait his return before we learn whether they are safe or not. If stolen, they could only have been stolen with the view to sell as old metal; and why, if such were the object, the sound bells should have been taken and the broken left, it is difficult to conceive. We are requested to correct the statement made in a Charleston paper, that when these bells were brought to Columbia, they were left exposed on the platform at the railroad depot. On the contrary, they were promptly housed, in a building on the Capitol grounds, which was fired and destroyed by SHERMAN's troops, at the time of the general conflagration of the city. The site where the bells still lie is that of the building which covered them.—Columbia Phœnix.

A GREAT NATURAL CURIOSITY.—The Sentinel, published at Jacksonville, Oregon, of the 12th ultimo, says: "Several of our citizens returned last week from a visit to the Great Sunken Lake, situated in Cascade Mountains, about 75 miles northeast from Jacksonville. This lake rivals the famous valley of Sinbad the Sailor. It is thought to average 2,000 feet down to the water all round. The walls are almost perpendicular, running down into the water, and leaving no beach. The depth of the water is unknown, and its surface is smooth and unruffled, as it lies so far below the surface of the mountain that the air currents do not affect it. Its length is estimated at twelve miles, and its breadth at ten. There is an island in its centre having trees upon it. No living man ever has, and probably never will, be able to reach the water's edge. It lies silent, still and mysterious in the bosom of the 'everlasting hills,' like a huge well, scooped out by the hands of the giant genii of the mountains, in the unknown ages gone by, and around it the primeval forests watch and ward are keeping. The visiting party fired a rifle several times into the water, at an angle of forty-five degrees, and were able to note several seconds of time from the report of the gun until the ball struck the water. Such seems incredible, but is vouched for by some of our most reliable citizens. The lake is certainly a most remarkable curiosity."

—According to an official statement, the number of cattle carried off by the plague within the last twenty years amounted to no less than 200,000 in the one Province of Tobolsk, the original seat of this terrible scourge.

AMERICANS not only do their own fighting and voting, but their own perfuming. Phalon's "Night-Blooming Cereus" has attained a celebrity never achieved by any foreign perfume in this country, and even Europeans admit that it excels any of the floral extracts made abroad.—Schenectady Star.

TO THOSE WHO SUFFER.—It would seem almost incredible that men will continue to suffer when such a Remedy as PLANTATION BITTERS is within their reach. Persons troubled with Headache, Low Spirits, Heartburn, Pain in the Side, Back, or Stomach, Cramps, Bad Breath, and other symptoms of that horrid monster, Dyspepsia, are earnestly invited to test this Remedy.

These Bitters are very pleasant, and will not injure the weakest stomach.

No change of diet is necessary while using them. We recommend patients to eat all they want of the best the market affords.

As an antidote to disease, Plantation Bitters are of great value. Take them when the first unpleasant symptoms appear, and you may avoid weeks and months of prostrating sickness.

The first trial will do you good. You will feel its beneficial effect at once.

Particularly recommended to weak and delicate ladies requiring something to brace and build them up.

Sold everywhere.
